Alderman Robert F. Pennington, of First Ward, Is Named Provisional Mayor Pro Tem.

A. J. ORME HEADS FINANCE BOARD

Councilman To Resign From Committee as Soon as January Finance Sheet Is Completed.

Organization of the 1928 Atlanta city council Monday night was featured by induction of three aldermen and twelve councilmen; selection of Alderman Claude Ashley, of the fourth ward as mayor pro tem and Alderman Robert F. Pennington, of the first ward, as provisional mayor pro tem, appointment of new committees and delivery of the message of Mayor I. N. Ragsdale to members of the new council as he launched the second year of his administration. The committees furnished the only surprise of the session, seventy changes being announced, where very few were expected.

Alderman Robert F. Pennington was sworn in to succeed himself, as was Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the fifth ward. Alderman G. Everett Millican succeeds retiring Alderman Charles M. Ford, of the tenth.

Councilmen Sam Wardlaw, of the first; Dr. J. E. Turner, of the second; Ben T. Hulet, of the third; John A. White, of the fourth; Ellis B. Barrett, of the fifth; Jack C. Hardy, of the sixth; Jim Ozburn, of the seventh; A. J. Orme, of the eighth; T. Frank Callaway, of the ninth; George Lyle, of the tenth; and Tom Smith, of the eleventh, were sworn into office.

Raleigh Drennon, of the ninth, succeeds Horace Russell, who declined to offer for reelection.

Council, therefore, this year has only two new faces—Alderman Millican and Councilman Drennon.

Wave of Cold Weather Due To Continue

Frigid temperatures will continue today with only a slight let-up from the extremely cold weather of Monday, when the thermometer fell to 1 degree above zero, the coldest January 2 in 50 years, according to C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist. Today's temperatures will range from 12 to 25 or 30 degrees, he said.

Bringing with it the usual cold weather hardships, the subfreezing weather came in with the dawn of the new year in a sensational drop from the heights of unseasonable mildness, to give Atlanta and Dixie colder weather than that of New England and to cause deaths and injuries throughout the south.

Slightly Warmer Today.

While Atlantans hugged their hearths Monday in an effort to keep warm and comfortable, the thermometer dropped to almost unprecedented levels from Sunday's reading of 12 degrees. The weather will be slightly warmer today, but the meteorologist expects the temperature to remain below the freezing point all day. With

The onward rush of steel interurban electric cars at Jonesville, near Marietta, and the telescoping crash of the heavy type trolleys, with its terrible toll of dead and mangled, cast a heavy pall of sadness over Georgia on the second morning of the new year. The two upper photographs show both sides of the two cars which smashed head-on into each other, the "deadhead," southbound car piled into the crushed northbound Atlanta-Marietta passenger car, in which the dead and injured were riding. The lower photograph shows how the southbound car crashed its way into the northbound car, killing and maiming those in its path. The figure "4" in the photograph shows the bumper of the southbound car while the figure "2" shows the headlight of the car. Indescribable scenes of terror and pain and death are written in the debris of twisted steel and shattered wood.

THE DEAD:

Mrs. Earl McIntyre, Butlerstown, instantly killed.

George J. Hudson, about 60 years old, instantly killed, an electrician, employed by the Empire Construction company (affiliated with the Georgia Power company); survived by his widow and two children, living at Gilmore Station on Marietta line.

Meyer Lutzk, 46, of 75 Bass street, S. W., Atlanta, proprietor of the Army and Navy store, Marietta. Died shortly after being taken to Nolan sanitarium. Survived by his widow and three children, Harry, 18; Ralph, 14, and Mary, 6.

THE INJURED:

(At Marietta Sanitarium)

Mrs. Live White, 32, Fair Oaks, Ga., both legs broken and internal injuries, believed to be fatally injured.

Miss Bessie Young, 20, Smyrna, reported to be a stenographer for the Marietta Journal, broken leg.

Louis Millender, 45, Atlanta, seriously injured and not expected to live (later moved to Piedmont sanitarium).

Unidentified man between 20 and 30 years of age, broken leg and other injuries.

W. J. Bishop, Marietta, trainman, who was riding on car coming from Marietta, broken hip.

Luther Hames, Marietta, operator in charge of passenger car going toward Marietta, injured back, not believed to be seriously injured.

Miss Inez Kemp, Marietta, about 18, slight injuries.

Miss Elizabeth Eldridge, Smyrna, about 17, both ankles broken. The following were treated for sprains and bruises, but were not seriously injured so that they had to go to hospital.

J. A. Spears, Route 4, Marietta.

Mrs. Ethel McRae, 108 West Dixie avenue, Marietta.

Benny Copeland.

Miss Hattie Chumley and Miss Pearl Chumley, Route 4, Marietta.

J. M. Rudels, 1031 Greencove avenue, Atlanta.

F. J. McGuire, shopman at the Ashby street barn, Georgia Power company, slight injuries.

F. J. Cook, 728 Bonnie Brae avenue, also shopman at Ashby street barn, slight injuries.

Sam Castin, Marietta, cut and bruised.

Motormen of Both Cars in Interurban Crash Are Injured; W. W. Moon Suffers Broken Leg.

STATE ENGINEER TO REPORT TODAY

Power Company Says All Evidence Indicates That Motorman Hames Ran Past Red Signal.

With three persons dead, two others in a dying condition, and eighteen reported injured, the Georgia public service commission and Georgia Power company officials have started searching investigations into the cause of the disastrous head-on collision at 10:55 o'clock Monday morning between two interurban electric cars at Jonesville, one mile east of Marietta.

In the wake of the accident, one of the most disastrous in street railway history in this section of the country, hospital beds at Marietta were filled with injured passengers and grave fears were expressed for the lives of Mrs. Olive White, Fair Oaks, and Louis Millender, Atlanta.

James A. Perry, chairman of the public service commission, gave orders for a searching probe as soon as he was informed of the accident and J. Houston Johnston, engineer of the board, Monday night stated that he was ready to make a report this morning. Whether this report will be made public has not been determined.

The power company investigation up to the present time, it is said, indicates that the wreck was caused by Motorman Hames running past a red signal into a block rightfully occupied by the southbound car operated by Motorman Moon.

Meet Head-On.

Just a few minutes before the "Joseph E. Brown" car, northbound and due in Marietta at 11 o'clock, cleared its last siding before entering that city, the "Lemuel P. Grant," a "dead-head" car bound for Atlanta left Marietta. As the "dead-head" rounded a curve southbound, the regular car northbound met it full in the face, telescoped partially into it and the toll of death and injury was taken.

As far as can be learned not one person saw the crash, saving the occupants of the cars. The motorman of the "dead-head" car, W. W. Moon, of Atlanta, said his car was running at a rate of less than three miles an hour when the crash came. Motorman Luther Hames, in charge of the northbound car, did not state the rate of his car but declared he turned on all his emergency machinery when he

U.S. MARINES BOMB 'REBELS' FROM AIR

Counter Attack by American Force in Nicaragua Follows Urgent Request for Reinforcements.

Managua, Nicaragua, January 2.—(P)—Rebel forces under General Augustino Sandino were bombed by American marine corps airplanes today. Major R. E. Rowell led the attack from the air, and reported to Colonel Luis Mason Gulick, commander of the marines in Nicaragua, that several direct hits were made with bombs.

Washington, January 2.—(P)—An urgent need for hospital supplies and reinforcements was expressed in a radio message received tonight at the navy department from marine corps headquarters at Telapanea, Nicaragua, from which place the marine detachment which participated in yesterday's battle departed.

Police To Photograph Finger Prints on Fatal Weapon Hoping To Find Clue to Slayer.

With his chest slashed and a long butcher knife lying by his side, the lifeless form of Max Weintraub, 51, a groceryman at 1120 Sims street, in the Pittsburgh district, was found early Monday night in a pool of blood in his store by a negro woman customer.

The stab wound extended from his right shoulder to his heart, which was pierced by the knife used by the assailant and left by the dead man's side. Death came immediately, in the opinion of Detectives H. W. Armstrong and J. M. Austin, who are making every effort to trace the slayer.

Robbery was not the motive, according to detectives, for Weintraub's pocketbook and the money in the cash register were left intact. He also had a pistol in his pocket which was not moved by the assailant.

According to detectives, the contents of the store apparently were in good order and there was no indication of a struggle of any kind.

Detectives found a small wrapped package of fresh meat by the side of the dead man, which indicated that he had filled the order and was in

Injured Woman Relates MRS. ETHEL M'RAE "RAN FROM THAT TERRIBLE PLACE"

BY WHITNER CARY.

"I reached down to get my fare. I heard a terrible crash and my body was hurled against the seat in front. On looking up I saw, but inches in front of my eyes, the battered front of a trolley car. It seemed to come on and on and on, as if it would never stop. It looked just like it was going to go right through me—and then it suddenly came to a stop right in front of me. I felt a sting in my knee and a pain in my head. There were agonizing cries that seemed to come on and on and on, as if it would never stop. People crying and moaning and some yelling. I got up and stepped over a woman who was lying motionless—they tell me she is dead. Somehow I got out of that car and ran as fast as I could to get away from that terrible place." Such was the graphic word-painting given by Mrs. Ethel McRae, 108 Dixie drive, Marietta, concerning the crash of two trolley cars, one mile from Marietta Monday morning. A crash that has already taken three lives and injured a score.

Mrs. McRae, who had boarded the car in Atlanta to go to her home in Marietta, was to get off at Dixie avenue, a stop about half a mile from the scene of the accident. When Mrs. McRae boarded the car in Atlanta a gray-haired man of about 60 was sitting in the seat in front of her. A few minutes before the fatal crash a woman boarded the car and took the seat in front of her. Thirty sec-

HOPE TO OPEN S-4 TODAY FOR BODIES

Provincetown, Mass., January 2.—(P)—Rough seas and freezing temperatures halted the work of salvaging the sunken submarine S-4 today, but the crews of the salvage vessels were not idle.

With the promise of better weather condition tomorrow officers directing the work continued the preparation of the necessary equipment and the training of divers. Tonight the wind was dying and the temperature was rising slowly.

While the salvage fleet huddled Provincetown harbor for shelter from the bitter cold and inhospitable seas, officials of the naval board of inquiry which will open at the Boston navy yard on Wednesday came here to make a preliminary study.

Lieutenant Commander Leslie Bratton, who will act as judge advocate at the inquiry, and Lieutenant Commander C. H. Dunbar, his assistant, spent four hours on the submarine tender Bushnell and the mine sweep-

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."—(adv.)

NEW YEAR LIQUOR DEATH LIST GROWS

New York, January 2.—(United News).—With 10 poison liquor deaths cases and staggering extravagances in its wake, said New York tonight, tapered off in the two-day New Year's celebration by adding a million or so to its amusement bill and another victim to alcoholism.

Forty-eight hours of untold plunging and drinking have left 10 deaths due to bad whiskey. Movie house keepers and restaurants, roof garden parties and parties in general, have been a parade of inches. Three million and twenty-two thousand persons, more or less, flocked to shows during Sunday and Monday.

There was a parade of inches. Lines of pleasure seekers sometimes extended blocks from overworked box offices. The movie and play for the two days was about $1,000,000.

The only unhappy souls were of the street cleaning departments. Confetti blizzards left that contingent more work than Lindbergh.

FOUR LIQUOR DEATHS IN WASHINGTON

Washington, January 2.—(United News).—Four persons died as a result of drinking alcoholic liquors in Washington during the Christmas and New Year holidays, according to acting coroner Rogers.

Rogers said he believed these deaths were caused by a combination of excessive drinking and bad liquor, but that neither factor was the sole cause of death.

TRAPPERS RESCUE LOST MAIL FLIER

Dubois, Pa., January 2.—(P)—Harry G. Smith, Cleveland-New York mail pilot, who disappeared early last night while flying over western Pennsylvania, was found today in the wilds of the so-called "Hunters' Paradise" of Clearfield county. He was unhurt and his plane was undamaged.

Running into a severe snowstorm on the western edge of the Allegheny mountains at about 6 o'clock last night while en route eastward, Smith lost his course when the swirling snow obliterated the beacon guides on the ground. After two hours' futile effort to relocate the beacons, he came down in a clearing surrounding the Red Top hunting lodge some 14 miles from the main route and 25 miles from Dubois.

It was 9 below zero and Smith took refuge in the lodge, but without fire, for he had no matches and there were none in the mountain cabin. Two trappers, out to inspect a string of traps, saw the plane this morning and upon investigation located Smith.

WEATHER AGAIN DELAYS ENDURANCE FLIERS.

Daytona Beach, Fla., January 2.—(P)—Landlocked for more than two weeks while awaiting propitious weather to launch their assault on the world's airplane endurance record in their monoplane Pride of Detroit, Edward F. Schlie and William S. Brock, round-the-world fliers, faced the prospect of continued waiting tonight, as strong northwest winds continued to whip the beach from which they plan to take off.

Unless they can make their start on their proposed 60-hour flight "to nowhere" by Wednesday, they face another week's postponement because of unfavorable tide conditions that will prevail for six days.

'DID NOT KILL HER,' PHYSICIAN INSISTS

Los Angeles, January 2.—(P)—Days of steady grilling and the revelation of a mass of evidence against him failed late today to break the denial of Dr. Charles M. McMillan, 57, that he killed Mrs. Amelia Appleby, widow of a wealthy Chicagoan.

To every fresh inquiry and at every new clue unearthed the doctor reiterated his statement, "I did not kill her." Held without bail in the county jail awaiting the district attorney's effort tomorrow to obtain a murder indictment against him, the physician accused of killing Mrs. Appleby, sewing her body in a sack and dumping it at the roadside in San Fernando valley admitted that women "always had been a stumbling block" for him.

Admits They Were Friends. He reiterated his story of friendship with Mrs. Appleby, who by his business dealings with her as her business agent, and admitted that he dictated a will found in the dead woman's effects giving him authority over her large estate.

So far, investigating officers say, he has failed to offer an explanation for the finding in his quarters of $30,000 worth of jewelry since identified as Mrs. Appleby's property.

Attorneys Assert His Innocence. The claim that Dr. McMillan is merely a victim of circumstances has been put forward by his attorneys, who announced their belief that he was innocent after a long discussion of the case with him.

Among the evidence the police charge incriminates the physician are articles found in his apartment. Included in the findings were a woman's underclothing, a hypodermic needle and narcotics, and a newspaper clipping of the finding of Mrs. Appleby's body.

STYRIA STIRRED BY GUN SMUGGLING IN EUROPE

Vienna, January 2.—(P)—A dispatch to the newspaper Der Morgen from the frontier station of St. Gotthard says that the smuggling of several thousand machine guns into Hungary from Italy this morning under a false declaration is causing great excitement throughout Styria.

The dispatch says that when Austrian customs officials discovered the ruse they hurried to recapture the arms-laden freight cars but failed and resigned their officers. The matter is expected to be brought up in parliament.

Father of U. S. Dry Law Calls Bootleggers' Millions Myth

St. Paul, Minn., January 2.—(United News).—The father of prohibition is satisfied with prohibition progress: Bootleggers' Millions Myth.

Andrew J. Volstead, former congressman from Minnesota who sponsored the eighteenth amendment enforcement act, announced today that he believed the dry law was more adequately enforced and respected in 1927 than in any previous year since the act was passed.

He predicted, also, that the Volstead act would become more and more an effective statute and a part of the tradition of the nation. Volstead is not worried, he said, about wet propaganda on the possibility of the amendment being repealed or nullified through repeal of enforcement legislation.

Opponents of prohibition have had their day," he said. "They will continue to advance propaganda, but the audience to which they address themselves will diminish. People aren't interested in their arguments any more."

"The people are not deceived by proposals of the wets. They know that repeal of the prohibition law will mean return of the corner saloon which they don't want."

Systematic violation of the law also is waning, Volstead believes, because there is no profit in bootlegging equivalent to the risk involved.

"The bootlegger's millions are a myth," he explained, "and the belief that prohibition agents are a bunch of crooks is equally false. Prohibition agents are, for the most part, honest and efficient. The bootlegger is merely a criminal who can't pay his bills."

Volstead attributed the improvement in enforcement and acceptance of the prohibition law to failure of the younger generation to acquire the drinking habits of some of their elders.

Cap'n Streeter's Heirs Reopen "MA" STREETER OUT OF BATTLE FOR "GOLD COAST" 50-Year Chicago Land Fight

Chicago, January 2.—(P)—A battle of half a century for the "District of Lake Michigan," which was waged by "Cap'n Wellington Streeter with a shotgun on a houseboat," will be resumed tomorrow in the United States circuit court of appeals.

Cap'n Streeter and his shotgun will not be there and neither will "Ma" Streeter, his belligerent helpmate. The captain is dead and "Ma" has been disqualified as a defendant, but a score of heirs are contesting title to property worth millions of dollars, including the land on which stands the Drake hotel and a dozen skyscrapers, and through which runs Lake Shore drive.

Cap'n Streeter claimed the land because he became a squatter there in his houseboat. With his shotgun he threatened to be in the churchyard. A. C. Hemperley & Sons are in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Smith is survived by three daughters, Mrs. L. C. Beasley, of Stone Mountain; Mrs. A. W. Harper, of Hampton, Ga.; and Mrs. Nellie Beasley, of Columbus, Ga.; two sons, V. T. Smith, of Griffin, and C. J. Smith, of Easton, Ga.; a sister, Mrs. J. R. Head, of Griffin, and a brother, L. J. Smith, of Hollinsville, Ga.

COLD STOPS WORK AT SUNKEN SUB

Provincetown, Mass., January 2.—(P)—Hope of continuing the salvage work on the sunken submarine S-4 was abandoned for the day this morning when the air line of a diver's helmet froze as it was dropped over the side of the flagship Falcon to test the temperature of the water.

The day was coldest Provincetown has experienced this winter. The sea, which had been whipped into a fury by the 60-mile gale which raged last night, was too rough this morning to permit the resumption of the operations.

Aboard the Falcon, which remained at her anchorage inside of the harbor, Diver Tom Eadie awaited favorable weather to descend and become the first man to enter the S-4 since she was rammed and sunk by the coast guard destroyer Paulding on December 17.

Of the score of divers in the salvaging fleet, he has been selected to attempt the first hazardous entrance.

This attempt, however, will not be made until weather conditions are well nigh perfect, according to statements of Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby and Captain Ernest F. King, who are directing the work.

CONGRESSMAN LA GUARDIA GOES TO INSPECT WRECK.

New London, Conn., January 2.—(P)—To obtain information as to operation of submarines and to experience conditions involved in a trip from place to place, Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York, today left the submarine base on the S-8 for Charleston navy yard.

The undersized, six-foot, 120-pound, 44-year-old congressman, who was placed at the disposal of Congressman La Guardia by Rear Admiral F. H. Brumby, who also detailed Commander H. Gibson, chief of staff of the U. S. S. Camden, as his personal aide.

Before departing Congressman La Guardia said that he would make the trip to obtain information and the experience would include one of more dives on the way.

NOTED ACTRESS DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

New York, January 2.—(P)—Miss Emily Stevens, 42, who began a notable stage career at the age of 15 under the tutelage of her aunt, Minnie Maddern Fiske, died today in her west side apartment after a sudden attack of illness. Assistant Medical Examiner Miles said that death probably resulted from an overdose of medical narcotics.

Albany Breaks Prize Winning Fire Loss Mark

Albany, Ga., January 2.—(P)—Fewer fires and less fire loss in 1927 than in 1926 or 1925, when Albany won the grand award of the United States Chamber of Commerce for the most marked achievements in reduction of fire losses, are shown in the annual report of Fire Chief D. W. Brounan, made public today.

The 1927 report shows that only 97 fires, entailing a total loss of $7,965, occurred here last year. In 1924 when Albany first won national recognition by leading all cities of 20,000 population or less in low fire losses, the record was 153 fires and loss of $7,838. The following year, with 127 fires and a loss of $27,106, Albany first won the grand award offered by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the national fire waste council for all cities irrespective of size. The next year, 1926, there were only 110 fires with a total loss of $7,983 and Albany again took the grand award. Last year's record shows 13 fewer fires and a reduction of $28 in the fire loss.

The 97 fires of last year occurred in buildings valued at $330,195, he said, insured for $225,000. Not a single fire spread from one building to another and the department maintained its 22 record of not losing a life by fire. Causes of all fires were determined and wood-shingle roofs, now forbidden by city ordinance, were responsible for 46, or nearly half.

MILD 1927 WINTER CUT COAL OUTPUT

Philadelphia, January 2.—(AP)—Production of anthracite coal fell off more than 3,000,000 tons, or 5.5 per cent, in 1927, the anthracite bureau of information announced tonight.

The output last year, based on official figures to the middle of December and estimated tonnages for the remainder of the year, was approximately 72,000,000 tons against 75,590,000 in 1926. In making these figures public, the bureau said that of the factors entering into this reduction in production, the mild winter of 1926-1927 was the most important.

"For the ten years preceding 1927, including the two abnormal war years, 1917 and 1918, and the abnormal strike years of 1922 and 1923," said the bureau, "average anthracite shipments were 65,671,043 tons. Shipments for the year just ended were therefore about 3.5 per cent below the 10-year average and about 5.5 per cent below the 1926 record."

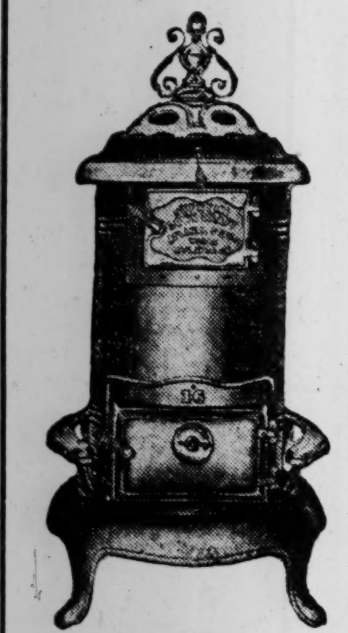

Total commercial production—that is production less the coal consumed at the mines for power—was given as approximately 66,000,000 tons in 1927, compared with 69,648,000 the previous year. Shipments to markets outside the region last year aggregated 62,500,000 gross tons against 67,248,946 in 1926. The largest shipments on record were in 1918, when 76,267,687 tons were sent out of the region.

LOIE FULLER DIES AT HOME IN PARIS

Paris, January 2.—(United News.)

Loie Fuller, the dancer, is dead. Born on a farm near Chicago 58 years ago, she attained the heights of popularity and fame, was a great friend of Queen Marie of Rumania, and toured the United States with her, made the American "Who's Who," and was one of America's most colorful contributions to the International theater.

She died in her apartment at 11 o'clock last night, victim of bronchitis and pneumonia.

Former Pupils Honor Dancer.

A crowd of her former pupils, many of whom she had made famous, gathered today in Miss Fuller's death chamber and paid their last respects to a remarkable personality and a splendid woman. She will be buried Wednesday in Pere la Chaise cemetery, in Paris.

Miss Fuller became ill about a month ago but she recovered. Three days ago she was confined to her bed again. Bronchitis and pneumonia set in. Specialists were called in and they tried their hardest to sustain life, but Loie Fuller passed quietly away, without pain.

Five years after she made her first New York appearance, the serpentine dance was born. New York was shocked. It was an artistic triumph, she said, "shocking," was the New York verdict.

Wrote and Produced Ballets.

Then came her career with the ballets. She wrote and produced many ballets which were presented in London, Paris, Calcutta—everywhere. One ballet was entitled "Dances of a Thousand Veils." The figure was arbitrary. When Queen Marie decided to tour the United States with her children, Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana, Loie Fuller was chosen as her companion.

They got along famously. Where Queen Marie was, there also was Miss Fuller. The Metropolitan opera ballet practically started the royal tour. Out west there was an argument. One of those traveling with the queen wanted to be the chief aide-de-camp and asked that Miss Fuller be discharged.

Miss Fuller completed the trip with the queen; the complainant got off the train on the Pacific coast.

Woman Is Killed In Auto Mishap; 6 Others Unhurt

Waycross, Ga., January 2.—(Special.)—Mrs. Janie Hickox died here today of injuries sustained in an auto accident Sunday morning.

Mrs. Hickox was the only one of seven passengers in the Hickox car at the time of the accident that was even injured.

According to Henry Hickox, the husband, who was driving the car, he turned slightly out of the Dixie highway to avoid striking a cow. The car lurched, turned turtle and threw Mrs. Hickox out. None of the other six passengers, including an infant, was even scratched.

Hickox lives on route five, near here. Mrs. Hickox is a native of Pierce county and is survived by her husband and three sons, Leroy, Bookman and Joseph. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. King, of Blackshear, and six brothers and two sisters also survive. They are W. H. King, Avant King, J. M. King and L. E. King, of Blackshear; A. C. King, of Cogdell; J. E. King, of Waycross; Mrs. J. K. Smith and Mrs. A. J. Smith, of Pierce county.

The funeral was held today from Shiloh church in Pierce county and burial was in Shiloh cemetery.

New Year Dance Ends as Guest Is Shot by Host

Athens, Ga., January 2.—(AP)—Virgil Hawes, 25, is in a local hospital suffering from serious wounds suffered in a gun fight Saturday night during a New Year's eve dance at the home of A. D. Bullock, at Nicholson, Jackson county.

Bullock, who is about 20 and married, gave himself up to officers, claiming, according to authorities, that he shot Hawes in self-defense. Reports received here said he was not held.

Hawes was shot in the abdomen and his condition was said at the hospital to be critical.

PRISONER TRIES SUICIDE, HOLDS POLICE AT BAY

After futile attempts at self-destruction since his arrest Saturday on disorderly conduct charges, Jack Crews, alias W. W. Moore, Monday wrenched an iron pipe from his cell fittings and held at bay a half score of police officers who sought to quiet him.

The prisoner, believed to be demented, beseeched his captors to kill him. "Come on in my cell," he invited, "and you'll have to kill me to get this pipe."

Reluctant to enter, the attendants thrust in a pipe and cornered Crews. He was quickly subdued. The prisoner had attempted suicide by slashing his throat with a bit of glass; again by tearing apart a tin cup and striking the ragged edge across his jugular vein.

Crews, who gave his residence as Hoboken, Ga., was treated at Grady for minor injuries.

CHILDREN OFFER DISCARDED TOYS TO CHEER POOR

Children of Atlanta joyfully assumed the role of Santa Claus Monday with the opening of the Salvation Army's "broken toy week," during which an effort is being made to gather up all the broken and discarded Christmas toys from well-to-do homes for free distribution during the winter to sick children in homes of the poor.

By 2224, the telephone number of the Salvation Army's social service and industrial center, Monday rang with an almost unbroken series of offers of all kinds of playthings.

A special appeal for winter clothing, including underwear, blankets and overcoats was made Monday night by Captain W. H. Ronger, commander of the department, after the bitter cold weather of the preceding two days had sent so many shivering people to seek the Army's aid that all heavy clothing stocks were completely exhausted for the first time this winter.

CLUE TO ATTACK ON WOMAN SEEN IN RADIATOR CAP

A blood-smeared radiator cap Monday was the clue by which police sought to connect two men arrested here Sunday with the possibly fatal injuries of a woman known to investigators as Mrs. Della Wood. Mrs.

Wood lies unconscious at Grady hospital, where physicians see little chance for her recovery.

Burglars of the Stripling Drug company at Roswell and theft of the automobile in which Mrs. Wood is believed to have been riding at the time of her injury are laid to the prisoners by detectives.

When apprehended at a local hotel, the men gave the names of J. L. Wilder, 20, and Lee Gray, 26, both of Chattanooga. Gray, police say, has confessed his name is Jack Wood and that he is an escaped convict from the Henry county chain gang, where he was serving ten years for auto theft. The radiator cap was found by the side of an automobile abandoned near Roswell, and containing several stolen articles. Mrs. Wood had been beaten over the head with a pointed instrument, presumably the radiator cap, according to police.

Investigators say the machine has been identified as that stolen from W. C. Douglas of Roanoke, Va., while the latter was on an Atlanta visit.

SENATOR COUZENS DAUGHTER IS WED

Detroit, January 2.—(AP)—Miss Madeline Couzens, eldest daughter of Senator James Couzens, and William Rumer Yaw, a Detroit sales engineer, were married today at "Wabec," the today.

Bloomfield Hills country home of the senator near Pontiac. They left this afternoon on a honeymoon trip to the south. Their destination was kept secret.

Radio fans generally should be able to hear the $60,000 Dodge Brothers broadcast Wednesday night for if they have no radio set in their own home, they are invited to visit the Lambert-Eskridge Motor company's salesroom that evening where they not only may hear the broadcast but may see the new Dodge "Victory Six."

Through the courtesy of the Alexander-Seewald company, state distributors, special installation of a Bremer-Tully counterphase radio receiver and loud speakers has been made which assures all visitors to the Lambert-Eskridge salesroom a perfect reception of this famous broadcast, which is featuring Will Rogers, Fred Stone, Paul White-man and Al Johnson.

Many Elements Aiding Progress Of Empire State

BY J. F. SETTLE.
President J. H. Hiltman & Co., Inc.

Conditions in the south are getting better every day and the outlook is very bright. Industrially, we are experiencing an exceptional and unusual development, almost revolutionary in character, evidenced by the migration of capital from the east to our section. Cheap water power, intelligent and efficient labor, advantageous shipping and transportation facilities, coupled with favorable freight rates and good roads are bringing the manufacturing interests of New England to the south.

The natural resources of the state of Georgia, together with its excellent railroad facilities and wonderful power developments, make this state one of the most important in this group. Diversified and cooperative farming is solving our agricultural problem, and the farmers of this state are gradually getting away from the one crop idea. Peaches, melons, pecans, peanuts and tobacco in the south and central section of this state are and will be the backbone of the larger cities are coming into their own. "Quick money" crops; although "King Cotton" of course, will always be the leader in the farming industry of the state.

Outside money is gradually coming into this great section for investment, and Georgia municipal bonds command prices as high as any state in the union. The high price received for the recent issue of City of Atlanta bonds is evidence of the high standing enjoyed by Georgia municipal bonds among investors throughout the nation. It has been many years since money was so plentiful and so cheap, and many of our leading corporations are taking advantage of the opportunity to strengthen their capital structure and to make ample provision to take care of the increased business which is sure to come.

SOVIET LEADERS EXILE TROTSKY, OTHER REDS

Moscow, January 2.—(AP)—The presidium of the soviet Russian central executive committee today resolved unanimously to expel Leon Trotsky, Gregory S. Zinovieff, Leon B. Kameneff, Christian Rakovsky, and several other prominent soviet leaders.

The decision was taken on the initiative of the communist section of the soviet Russian executive committee which is the chief legislative body of the country. The communists contended that persons expelled from the party were unfit for membership in the legislature. Among others expelled from the committee today were the oppositionists Beloborodoff, Ischenko, Kaissaroff and Smirnov.

FAMOUS AVIATOR JOINS AERONAUTIC COMMERCE BODY

New York, January 2.—(AP)—The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce announced today the addition to its staff of former Lieutenant John Harding, Jr., U. S. A., a member of the army's round-the-world flight in 1924. He will maintain contact between the various specialized groups of the industry. The chamber said that the prosperous condition of the aircraft interests has brought about such increased membership that numerous additions to the personnel and facilities of the organization have been necessitated both in New York and Washington.

Heads Insurance Co.

Rogers, Ark., January 2.—(AP)—Frank N. Julian, Birmingham, former insurance commissioner of Alabama, has been elected active vice president of the Union Life Insurance Life and Union Life Insurance companies, with headquarters here, it was announced today.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsion of cod liver oil, which is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agents for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(adv.)

Supt. Mobley Explains Act Regulating Trust Companies

A. B. Mobley, state superintendent of banks, has issued a statement clearing up "some confusion in the minds of the public as to the proper construction of the act regulating trust companies adopted at the last session of the general assembly" and as to its application to different classes of corporations doing business in the state.

Mr. Mobley explained that the interpretation of the law was worked out by Orville A. Park, special counsel for the department of banking, and that this in turn was concurred in and adopted by the state attorney general as his official opinion.

Briefly summarized, the conclusions reached are as follows: "1. That companies incorporated by the secretary of state under the trust company act of 1908 with banking powers and privileges, are subject to the jurisdiction and supervision of the superintendent of banks."

"2. That companies incorporated by the secretary of state under the trust company act of 1908 without banking powers and privileges are subject to the jurisdiction and supervision of the superintendent of banks."

"3. That the character of a corporation chartered under the trust company act of 1908 is to be determined by its charter rather than by the business in which it engages, such companies are subject to the jurisdiction of the superintendent of banks, although they do not receive deposits of any character or transact any ordinary banking business. This being expressly provided in section 3 of the act of August 25, 1927.

"4. That trust companies incorporated under special act of the legislature prior to the amendment of the constitution adopted in 1901 with or without banking powers and privileges are by section 3 of the trust company act of 1927 made subject to the supervision of the superintendent of banks."

"5. That savings and loan companies and trust companies chartered by the superior courts of this state are expressly excluded from the operation of the trust company act of 1927 by section 10 thereof and such companies are not under the jurisdiction of the superintendent of banks."

"6. That amendments to the charter of savings and loan companies and similar corporations, created by the superior courts, granted by the secretary of state under the act of 1910, do not have the effect of placing such corporations under the jurisdiction of the superintendent of banks in view of the language of Section 10 of the trust company act of 1927.

"7. That savings and loan companies and trust companies chartered by the superior courts using as a part of their corporate name the word 'trust' or 'trust company' must use in connection with the corporate name the words 'not under state supervision.' This to comply with the provisions of Section 2 of the act."

WITNESSES DELAY TRAIN WRECK QUIZ

Chicago, January 2.—(AP)—Inquiries into the blame for the two triple train wrecks in Chicago during the holiday week-end, killing three persons and injuring a hundred others, were continued today pending the recovery of witnesses.

The death-bed statement of J. O. Stafford, motorman of a Chicago, South Shore and South Bend Electric train which crashed into two other trains Sunday night, was introduced at the inquest into his death. The statement quoted him as saying he saw the two stalled trains ahead of him when he was 1,000 feet away but that his brakes failed to take hold.

His train, a Gary express, plowed into the rear end of the South Bend express which had been forced to stop by a local train disabled with frozen brakes.

The crash telescoped the South Bend train, cars catching fire and steam pipes bursting, terrorizing the passengers. A score were sent to hospitals, but none is reported in a critical condition.

Inquiring into the first triple crash Saturday on the Chicago and Alton line, in which two Tulsa, Okla., women were killed, proceeded at the general offices of the road in Bloomington. The Alton crash also was caused by a train plowing into the rear of a stalled train, halted by a third train ahead, all Chicago bound. Fifty were hurt.

Frozen Brakes Cause Wreck.

An engineer of a Louisville and Nashville train was killed near Mt. Vernon, Ill., today when his train was unable to take a siding because of frozen brakes and crashed head-on into another train.

TEXAS 'BLUEBEARD' AWAITS SENTENCE

Plainview, Texas, January 2.—(United News).—Awaiting death with an attitude of unconcern, hearing almost on nonchalance, George J. Hassell, modern "Bluebeard," will appear in court January 9 to hear himself sentenced to death.

The slaying of 13 women and children to which he has confessed has affected Hassell but slightly. The bodies of Mrs. Hassell and her eight children were found in a cave Christmas eve of 1926. Hassell was captured and he admitted the crime as well as the murder of a woman and three children in California previously.

Hassell has had three wives in his 39 years, records reveal, and has had intimate "affairs" with innumerable other women in each of 37 states in which he has been employed.

The court hearing January 9 will be merely a formal procedure, following Hassell's unsuccessful appeal to the supreme court after he was sentenced to death by a district court jury.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

The annual message of Mayor Ragsdale, read before general council Monday evening, was not proficiency, in the sense that it simply eulogized every department of city government, but it contained a number of worthy recommendations that should be heeded.

He emphasized the cooperation that had been extended to him, as chief executive, by council, and also by all of the city department heads, and their colleagues. But for this his administration, of course, could not have been the outstanding success during 1927 that it proved to be.
The mayor recognized this, and feelingly commented upon it.

He discussed the question of economy in a broad, sensible way.
Declaring the school department to be the largest in its demands upon the public treasury, he distinctively declared that "false ideas of economy" should not be permitted to prevail in its real wants.

"Our schools need watchful care against all unnecessary friction and strain in management," he said. And then he declared significantly:

"The mayor and general council will come into more active financial affiliation with the school department by reason of the people's recent ratification of a charter amendment which gives the mayor veto power over the financial budget of the board of education. And provides that the chairman of the school committee of council shall be an ex-officio member of the board."

The message carried a strong recommendation that the sewage disposal plant, on Peachtree creek, be removed at the earliest possible moment, and earnestly commended the action of council in its extensive park program for 1928.

One of the most significant recommendations was that street improvement projects now under way be completed before new projects are begun, and in the matter of traffic control he recommended a number of one-way streets, and this recommendation is especially worthy in view of Atlanta's traffic situation, which is gratifyingly getting better,
due to Mayor Ragsdale's vigilance.

He strongly urged a new police barracks, and the relocation of engine company number four. He called attention to the fact that the efficiency of the sanitary department will be greatly improved after January 15 by the placing into service of the new unit of the crematory plant. He urged the finance committee to set aside in the January budget an appropriation in an amount substantial enough to make available the Jacob Elsas donation for a pay ward at Grady hospital.

He commended the work that has been done on Candler field, commended the county for its cooperation, and urged such other work as necessary for making Atlanta's airport second to none in this country.
He urged an audit of the city's books, and the installation of the centralized system. He recommended also the building of an adequate municipal auditorium. He recommended also the enlargement of the main Carnegie library to meet imperative demands.

On the whole the mayor's message was direct, forceful, constructive, and written with policy of city development that if inaugurated will mean the enhancement of the material welfare of every citizen.

LET ATLANTA TAKE NOTICE.

Dallas, Texas, has adopted a remarkably constructive program for city development, and has issued $25,000,000 in bonds to put the program into effect.

With these funds new schools will be built, several new parks developed, library extensions will be made, and a great municipal auditorium will be constructed.

All over the United States cities of the size of Atlanta, and smaller, are preparing extensive improvement plans for 1928. They are providing the funds by bond issues.

They are merely using their credit to capitalize the future—the only sensible thing to do.

No city can grow and progress on the "pay-as-you-go" plan, and it is folly to attempt it.

Atlanta should be bonded to the legal limit, and the proceeds should be used in doing big things for the material welfare of all the people.

Not to do so is a penny wise and pound foolish policy.

ATLANTA'S SYMPATHY.

Atlanta is deeply grieved at the interurban accident which resulted so disastrously Monday.

To the families of the bereaved, both as to fatalities and serious injuries, the sympathy of all are extended.

On the whole this city and environment have been remarkably free from street car accidents. Most of the casualties have resulted from traffic accidents in which street cars were not involved.

The facts as to the collision at issue emphasize the necessity for double tracking on distance runs, and especially where there are curves which do not permit of visibility one way or the other.

The accident of Monday, as serious as it was, was possibly unavoidable under the circumstances, but there should be removed every possibility for such a collision.

THE SOUTH AND INDUSTRY.

The story of the growth of many southern industries is nothing less than a romance.

It is true as to the manufacture of leaf tobacco, as plug and smoking, and into cigarettes. This great development came after the war between the states, and largely as a matter of necessity. It had its beginning at Durham, N. C., where Washington Duke and General Carr were the founders of manufacturing companies that subsequently became great institutions, and are today.

Some day the story of the "romance of tobacco" will be written.
In the recent issue of the Manufacturers Record the editor, Mr.
Edmondson, says:

"This forward movement of the south in the establishment of new industries and the relocation in the south of northern industries, is a movement of such far reaching national importance that it means a complete change of conditions throughout the south and the making of this section the real industrial center of America. Broad as that statement is, time will demonstrate its correctness. It is interesting in this connection to note that the great milk and cheese making concerns of the country are likewise turning their attention to the south to such an extent as to insure that this section will become the dairy and cheese making center of America."

The fact is, as brought out forcibly in the statement of the United States department of commerce the other day, the diversity of industry in the south is the controlling factor in the south's prosperity.

The south is the home of raw production and industry must, by the laws of economics, follow the source of the raw products to be made into finished production. This, with the more than favorable labor conditions, the climatic advantages,
the transportation facilities, etc., make the south nationally the industrial center of the nation.

FOOLHARDY EXPEDITION.

The practical certainty that the "Dawn" has met an ill fate, and that Mrs. Grayson and her three flying companions again accentuates the necessity for the government to prohibit attempted flying expeditions over northern waters during the winter months.

The Grayson expedition was so hazardous that it was nothing short of foolhardy.

Experts advised against it. The weather department in Washington advised against it. The families and friends of the four fliers advised against it. Ordinary common sense advised against it. Mrs. Grayson turned a deaf ear, and just what was anticipated throughout the nation, resulted. Her fate, if she is lost, makes her the third woman aviator to have been lost in 1927, in overseas attempts. Not less than 18 men aviators have met the same fate. The miraculous escape of Ruth Elder was mere "good luck."

The fate of the Grayson expedition also emphasizes the folly of attempting the northern route for trans-Atlantic air flights. Even in summer the fogs and rains become icy, and reason teaches that accumulated ice on the wings of a plane will bring it to the surface. No plane can successfully battle a rough sea. The government should stop such expeditions over these waters.

The feasible and only sensible route is, as has been suggested, from the southeastern coast, via Bermuda and the Azores, and to the coast of Spain. Colonel Lindbergh, the world's greatest aviator, has confirmed this statement.

Remus was freed on a plea that he was crazy and is now trying to gain his liberty on the plea that he is sane. If he succeeds the courts are crazy.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Wesley's Amour.

Secret documents and a search of obscure journals and public records have enabled the revelation for the first time of the love-story of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism while he was spreading the light in primitive Georgia, says a New York correspondent. Mrs. Marie Conway Gentler has been responsible for the researches, and she has turned her efforts to account by the publication of "The Holy Lover," which can be described as a biographical novel.
Wesley spent rather more than 20 years in Georgia, and it is shown that practically all that time he was a lover torn between the woman whom he worshiped and the one of celestial beauty he had taken. Through the conviction of Colonel Oglethorpe he met a girl named Sophy, with whom he fell in love. He never actually proposed to her. But his own "reading" questions alarmed him. Suddenly, however, Sophy married another.
Bitterness entered Wesley's soul. He said bluntly in his journal that of loved Sophy, and one entry relating to an incident just before the surprise marriage is illuminating: "What might have been the consequence had I then touched her hand; and how I avoided it I know not. Surely God is over all."

Englien Reopens.

Gamblers are eagerly watching the efforts of a number of deputies to rein in the reopening of Englien casino which has been closed for many years.
So many private gambling houses have secured licenses in Paris since within the last two years that those who clamor for the reopening of Englien are pretty confident of success. Englien is a beautiful suburb almost at the gates of Paris with a fine casino built on the wooded shores of a romantic lake. It was a favorite resort with Parisians who went there not only to gamble but to enjoy boating on the lake and drive in the Montmorency. There is also a thermal establishment with sulphur baths which doctors declare possess remarkable medical qualities. The gaming rooms opened when the Riviera season closed and shut down when Aix-les-Bains again began to reopen. It was alleged, however, that Englien tempted too many young people of modest means who would go out there on Saturdays evenings and sacrifice their week's salary on the petits-chevaux tables. A campaign was started in the press with the result that a law was passed prohibiting petits-chevaux and similar games within a radius of 60 miles of Paris. Englien therefore had to close down.

Baths for Montmartre.

The artists of Montmartre have incorporated a company called "Montmartre for the Artists." They are selling shares of stock with 100 francs and hope to get eight millions with which to build apartments for the artists. The city of Paris has promised to lend them two millions and has given a piece of the city's property on which to construct the first studio building. No doubt Montmartre will have a more artistic outline when these studio buildings are constructed.
It will be less picturesque, but more comfortable. The old tumbled-down buildings which now make up the artists' section of Montmartre are in need of reconstruction. The artists are of various ages, and the artists living there because rent was cheap when the city was poor. The artists are now more affluent now and are building themselves modern duplex apartments with hot and cold water.
Along side of the plot where the first studio buildings are to be constructed stands the house where Mimi Pinson lived when Murger first met her, and by a curious coincidence it is being torn down at exactly the same time that the excavations are being made for modern studios. According to legend Murger lived in this house. The house lived upstairs and the romance which the whole world knows through the opera "La Boheme" was his own.

GOVERNMENT AGRICULTURAL POLICY CRITICIZED.
BY LESTER J. DICKINSON.
Representative Frank B. Rowland of Iowa, in a speech before the House, Monday, Jan. 2, 1928, said that the government's agricultural policy was "a failure." He said that the government's policy was
"a failure" because it was "a failure to protect the farmer from the fluctuations of the market." He said that the government's policy was "a failure" because it was "a

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Coming Fight Over Tax Reductions May End Without Any.

Washington, January 2.—(Special.)
The fight over the spectacle of a tax reduction bill sent over by the house. That body of political blackbirds, the "good luck" rule-shooters, valued at $225,000,000, and the wielded caulk on the bill for nearly $500,000,000 more!

The important question is what will the senate agree upon as additional improvements in the tax benefits for the taxpayers?
Senator Reed Smoot, who is a republican grand bursar of the senate, has been appealed to by the president and the secretary of the treasury to prevent any senate mutilations of the bill until after March 15, when the treasury assumes that it will know more reliably the likely excess tax collections of 1929.

The plea for delay is a plausible one, but it does not make a hit with the democrats and insurgents. They want tax reduction now and plenty of it, and are telling Smoot that if he undertakes to impound the bill until March 15 they will take it away from his finance committee and proceed to play soccer with it on the open floor. And they have the votes to do that, if they deem it necessary.

Will There Be Any Reduction?
The fear is already expressed in some well-advised quarters here that we will get no reduction of taxes from this session of congress, and that the whole subject will go to make one of the big issues of the presidential campaign.

The democrats, led by such influential chiefs as Senators Simmons and King, are demanding that taxes be reduced by as much as $400,000,000.
They fear that the treasury is now collecting far above $500,000,000 in taxes, annually, more than the government needs for running expenses and normal reductions of the public debt. They scout the claim that cutting off four hundred millions from the taxes would produce a deficit in the treasury.

But whether it would bring on a deficit, or wouldn't, is not going to determine what will happen.
Information comes to me, that is perfectly satisfactory to my credence, that so surely as the congress sends to the president a bill reducing taxes more than $250,000,000—blam! He will send it straight to the bludgeon and brand it on the spot!

Why, congress will have to renege its promise to reduce taxes. It will stand pat, make no reduction at all, and go to the country, each man on his record made while the bill was going through the legislative mill.

It is no alternative, either. Sometimes politicians must be plungers!
Smoot Wants a Sales Tax.
Senator Smoot has come out in a strong argument for substituting a federal sales tax in place of all other taxes that those collected under the tariff at the custom houses. He sets out a number of reasons in an article in graphic terms, as the fairest, best felt, most widely distributed and most equitable.

Some able business men in Georgia have said to this writer in recent months that they fear that the general assembly made a great mistake in rejecting the sales tax in the session of last summer.

Great Cries and Little Wool.
So far as I can visualize the prospect ahead it seems that there will be much loud talk throughout the session and very little to show for it at the end.

Politics will be played up and down
the line at both ends of the capital, with no very great practical benefits to the people at large.

If, indeed, there shall be something workable done to prevent future agricultural overproduction and facilitate the marketing of the crops at home and abroad, the session will deserve much grateful credit.

And if it shall agree upon and put into execution comprehensive plans to control the water supply, to irrigate arid valleys, it will deserve double praise.

But it is going to be difficult to get agreements upon even those major subjects.

The fact is that most of the members of congress just now are frontrankers in the "Old Flag and an appropriation" line.

Those $500,000,000 in the treasury has got them all to licking their chops and demanding "something for my district!"

of the department of Oriental languages of Chicago university, states Sunday in an article that scholars know that the Romans and not the Jews crucified Jesus.

What is your opinion on this issue?

Jesus was accused of sedition by the official Judaism of His day and was tried and put to death under the Roman jurisdiction. The supreme priest, Caiaphas, who reserved to itself
the right to inflict capital punishment.

He could not have been crucified without the consent of the procurator, Pontius Pilate, and the final responsibility for the penalty lay upon him as the Roman governor of the province.

Boston, Mass.
Have you read "Elmer Gantry," by Sinclair Lewis? If so, will you please give your opinion of it?

I read it and was disappointed.
Mr. Lewis seems to me to have missed an opportunity to render a distinct service to the cloth by submitting such unfavorable specimen of clerical-ism to the searchlight of his report-orial genius.

Not that there is any crying need for criticism of the clergy. Indeed, the clergy are being tried and found guilty of a group of journalists or authors of journealese who exhibit: unusual rage, riot and rebellion, especially against the Protestant religion. This unhappy sight has been repeatedly exaggerated with a furious and blustering passion which deflated itself into serene and its supposed victim unharmed and serene.

Undoubtedly the vulgarities, obscenities, enormities and hypocrisies this book depicts are real. But they are not new. They have always been testimony to the values of sincerity and brazen-faced pulpitude or glib adventurism who render their bootleg religions as the genuine article.

But no such virtuosity in all the vices as Gantry is here represented to be ever did exist; no, not even in the circles with which Mr. Lewis exhibits an extensive intimacy. The leading character of this thoroughly inartistic book is therefore the author's personal record of his life and the general trend of his thought and imagination.

Instead of a flesh and blood creature, alive at every pore, manifesting the human condition, we are given analysis the curious psychology of the pervert and the liar, we are treated to the parade of a tailor's dummy dressed in the latest fashion, and a podge collection of nearly all the offenses to which human flesh is heir.

Detached and complete portrayal of life in any realm is a contribution to literature. We enjoy the wholesome corrective of the cleric by Eliot, Thackeray and Meredith. Even Dean and Thackeray. But this work is a contribution to the literature of the preacher.

New York City.
One barrier to my belief in religion is the doctrine that God will cast His erring children into eternal torment. I believe that if they will be tortured for eternity.

The Bible seems to be inconsistent in this matter. It speaks of eternal fire, and yet it also says that God is love and "His mercy endureth forever." If He tortures people in hell He cannot be a God of love and His mercy must cease somewhere.

What do you think of this? Is it necessary for one to hold such a belief in order to be religious?
There are few things about which we know so little as the nature and conditions of disembodied life. Therefore, dogmatic statements concerning it should be avoided. That the doctrine of future punishment has been grossly abused is beyond question.
But our sentiments are shared by large numbers of sincerely religious
men and women.

The fact that Scriptural language concerning rewards and penalties is highly figurative has been too often overlooked. Nevertheless its symbols are intended to depict a grim reality.
The phrase "eternal fire" is not to be taken literally, is certainly never to be treated lightly. The known consequences of sin are eternal. The sequence of reward and punishment are of a different order. But these consequences are not a denial of eternal love. On the contrary, they affirm it. Our sentiments are shared by large numbers of sincerely religious
men and women.

Does not experience warrant us in saying that punishment is necessarily involved in the doctrine of free will, gression, and that the punishment cannot cease while the transgression continues? The larger aspects of the problem are the mercy and the justice of God persist so long as sin and its consequences necessitate their being. Sin and its consequences can be mitigated by the repentance of the sinner.

But since repentance the longer it is deferred becomes increasingly difficult, there is a possibility that punishment will continue indefinitely, not because God will not forgive, but because the sinner will not repent and reject the divine legacy.

Well, I think that's a legitimate

I wonder whether a woman ought

CIGARETTES BAR WOMAN LECTURER

New York, January 2.—(AP)—Two lecture engagements in this country by Agnes Maude Royden, England's foremost woman preacher, have been canceled on the grounds that she smokes cigarettes and advocates companionate marriage.

The Woman's Home Missionary society, of the Methodist Episcopal church in Chicago, cancelled an address scheduled for February 12 because of Miss Royden's use of cigarettes, while the Boston branch of the same society broke an engagement because the members objected to her views on marriage.

Miss Royden, who is 51 years old and head of Guild house, London, admits she smokes cigarettes. She smokes them, she has said, because she enjoys them and because they rest her nerves.

Says She "Don't Care." In a letter to William B. Feakins, her American lecture manager, she said: "I do not care a button whether or not I smoke while in America, but I certainly do not concede that it is a matter of religious importance."

Miss Royden in some of her sermons has taken up the question of companionate marriage, but so far as could be learned here she has never definitely advocated it.

The two protesting societies have been released from their lecture contracts, said Mr. Feakins, who said he had been forced to decline 250 applications from religious societies in the country and that the two cancelled dates were quickly filled.

Chicago Cancels Lecture. He pointed out that Miss Royden was to address branches of the Mission society, in Philadelphia, Detroit and New York.

Mrs. Dan B. Brummitt, of Evanston, Ill., wife of Representative Brummitt, in a letter to Mr. Feakins cancelling the Chicago engagement, said: "The Chicago women have definitely stated that they will cancel the engagement here, since they feel that they cannot sponsor the luncheon after learning that Miss Royden uses cigarettes."

Mrs. Brummitt emphasized what she regards as the difference between the attitude toward smoking by women in this country and England, saying: "Smoking is not a general practice in this country and is not done at all by the women in our churches."

Miss Royden arrives on the Aquitania this week for a three months' lecture tour.

DRUG CONTROL EXPERT TO LECTURE THURSDAY

Miss Sara Graham-Mullhall, former first deputy commissioner of the New York state department on drug control, will give a lecture at 8:15 o'clock Thursday night in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club under auspices of the public welfare division of the club, of which Mrs. George W. Ripley, Jr., is chairman. The subject will be "Narcotic Drug Control."

Miss Graham-Mullhall first became interested in narcotic control through social work with girls discharged from reformatories and through observing how closely the drug traffic was related to the white slave traffic. For more than 20 years she has studied the problems of narcotic addiction and is trained in medicine and sociology.

The speaker will be introduced by Governor L. G. Hardman, who will be presented by Mrs. W. B. Price, Smith, president of the Woman's club, and who has made a study of the narcotic situation throughout her administration.

Marchers, Numbed by Cold, Collapse In New Year Parade

Philadelphia, January 2.—(AP)—Philadelphia's mummers had a hard time of it today celebrating the coming of the new year.

In the coldest weather ever experienced by the "shooters," six thousand members of the New Year's clubs marched, danced, cavorted and struggled up Broad street and out the Parkway in the teeth of a bitterly cold wind, while tens of thousands of spectators, blue faced and red checked, stood shivering along the route watching the antics of the revelers.

The cold weather took a toll of hundreds of spectators and many mummers. About a dozen persons who stuck to their places in the crowds were taken to hospitals, overcome by the cold. Here and there in the parade a mummer numbed by the cold collapsed and had to be thawed out in a hospital. The temperature averaged 17 degrees above zero.

Stage Stars Not Pining Maids Even Tho' Leap Year Is Here

BLOND PEGGY JOYCE SAYS IT'S "ABSURD"

New York, January 2.—(United News).—Leap year for the rest of the United States may be a boon for the pining maid, but to New York's chorus girls and grand opera prima donnas it means no more than the calendar maker's way out.

From Lucetta Bort, Metropolitan soprano, to Louise Barrett, diminutive dancer in "Lovely Lady," with Peggy Joyce's doubtful description of the year, 1928 is just another year.

Miss Bort told the "Times" she would marry, "certainly," but would not take advantage of the season's legendary prerogative to do it. Her press agent said she already was married, but had to add: "Of course, to her art."

But Miss Bort would not hear Billy Guard out. "I put love above everything," she said.

Peggy Joyce, who maintains a self-styled "indifference" to mankind, but for whom several sorrowful beneficiaries are named, believes a woman would lose her pride if she popped the question.

"Why, it's absurd," declared the blonde Miss Joyce. Although she has been Mrs. Something-or-other so many times that most persons have lost track, she would have it known that she never rushed a man into matrimony without his pursuit.

And Miss Louise Barrett, who recently returned from a triumphal tour of England with her own troupe of flapper girls, thinks the right and duty of the proposal still rests with man.

"The pretty coiffeur it would be," said the dancer, "if a girl would have to get down on her knees, look up in some strong man's eyes and say: 'Will you marry me and be my sweet husband? I want to work hard for you and protect you from everything but myself.'"

"Good grief," said Miss Barrett, "the idea slays me. If I asked a man to marry me and had to be a husband and wife to him at the same time, I'd make him change his name in the ceremony. Idea of my becoming Mrs. Jones or something when I had to beg for it."

U. S. NAMES TERMS OF FRENCH TREATY

Washington, January 2.—(AP)—American proposals in connection with the projected new peace treaty with France to take the place of the Root arbitration pact which expires February 27 have been placed before the French government in alternative form.

In view of the fact that these suggestions were put in definite form and transmitted through the French embassy after Secretary Kellogg had discussed the situation with the entire membership of the senate foreign relations committee, it is assumed by officials here that the proposal already have a considerable degree of senate sanction.

Two Proposals Made. The conversations between Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador Claudel are now known to have led to two different proposals as to ways and means of tightening up diplomatic machinery for preserving peace.

They also have made it clear that the Washington government is planning to follow up the conclusion of the new peace treaty or treaties with France by making over its arbitration agreements with other countries on the model of the new Franco-American commitments as the other Root treaties expire.

In the event that the original Root proposal for a treaty with the United States to outlaw war is followed closely, the Washington attitude is that a multi-lateral covenant to be signed by the United States and the two powers now concerned might be framed.

To Be of General Character. It would be of a general character, however, and amount to a joint policy declaration by the signatory powers against war. In view of constitutional limitations in this country, however, such as the reservation to congress alone of war making powers, no way appears open to include in a treaty of this character definite commitment not to resort to war under any circumstances.

The circumstance inclines the Washington viewpoint to favor a revision and strengthening of the Root treaty so as to include a policy declaration against war in the preamble. The succeeding articles of the treaty, however, would respect the commitments to submit to arbitration at the Hague disputes of every character.

LONDON SHOWS INTEREST IN PROPOSED PACT. London, January 2.—(AP)—The progress of negotiations for a Franco-American pact outlawing war is being watched in official circles here with great interest in anticipation of the possibility that Great Britain and other nations will be invited to join later.

The official attitude is that any suggestion for British adherence would receive a favorable consideration from the government but there is no desire to pledge in advance the British attitude before the actual demands of the pact are known or whether other nations would be willing to adhere.

It was stated today that the government as yet has no official knowledge of the contents of the draft pact and officials here reluctant to accept as authoritative press versions which have been cabled from the United States.

250,000 'SLAVES' FREED IN AFRICA

Freetown, Sierra Leone, Africa, January 2.—(AP)—The Negroes of the Sierra Leone protectorate could all call their bodies their own today as they began work with the opening of the new year.

Nearly 250,000 domestic slaves were delivered from bondage yesterday by decree and today were on a basis of political equality with their former masters. Lady Simon, wife of Sir John Simon, the distinguished British liberal statesman, is given credit for disclosing to the outside world conditions existing in the protectorate and making an ardent plea which resulted in the emancipation of the slaves.

Demonstration Lacking. Many of the older freed men and women won't live to know much of the fruits of freedom. But thousands of others, young and just beginning life, have new vistas opened to them. Emancipation did not evoke any demonstration. Indeed, their release is not yet fully understood by many of these simple and ignorant blacks. They are rather bewildered by the sudden change.

Comparatively few of the former slaves have left their former masters and it is probable that many of them never will depart unless they are subjected to cruelty, but will continue to work as free men and women for those who formerly claimed their labor without pay.

May Get Land Grants. It is said that in many cases the former slaves will have little difficulty in getting grants of land from their old masters. In some districts, however, numerous applicants already have been received from new employment by slaves who are dissatisfied or feel the urge to tackle the world on their account.

The question of what, if anything, will be done in regard to compensation of the former slave holders is not yet settled.

BROCK AND SCHLEE AGAIN POSTPONE ENDURANCE FLIGHT

Dunsmuir, Calif., January 2.—(AP)—The proposed endurance flight of Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, famous for an attempt to fly an airplane around the world, was again postponed today because of strong northwest winds that had brought the temperature below the freezing point.

The fliers donned heavy clothing and spent several hours coating ignition wires for the motor of their "Pride of Detroit" monoplane with a waterproof preparation to prevent collection of mist and salt water such as last week caused the suspension of their engine and forced them to land after a successful take-off.

'LINDY' TO HOP OFF SALVADOR TODAY

San Salvador, Salvador, January 2. (AP)—Colonel Lindbergh has made consideration an extension of his Central American tour to include Colombia and Venezuela, but will not make a decision until he reaches Panama.

The flier from the United States told correspondents today he had made no definite plans in this respect, but acknowledged that they were under consideration. Receptions and official ceremonies took up Lindbergh's time today. President Romeo Bosque planned a commemorative gold medal upon him at a reception at the national palace. Members of the cabinet, the diplomatic and consular corps and other high public officials were present at these ceremonies.

Huge Crowd Lines Streets.
On the way to the palace the streets were lined with some 10,000 persons who flocked to view the private citizen who is honored here as a special ambassador of the United States.

News and news reel photographers had their cameras trained on him at points all along the route to get every detail of his progress. Overhead a squadron of Salvadoran airplanes performed evolutions in friendly demonstration for the visiting flier.

Lindbergh expects to hop off tomorrow morning between 11 and 12 for Tegucigalpa, Honduras, where he will be only a short distance from the Nicaraguan border. (Fighting between American marines and Nicaraguan rebels of the past few days is just over the border and Lindbergh probably will fly almost directly over the scene of the fighting when he leaves Tegucigalpa for Managua, probably Thursday.)

MOTHER ARRIVES HOME SMILING HAPPILY.
Detroit, January 2.—(AP)—Smiling happily despite the trying experience of the last three days when snow storms twice forced the Ford monoplane in which she was a passenger to earth, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh stepped from the ship's cabin at the Ford airport here this afternoon, completing an epochal round-trip flight to the capital city of Mexico.

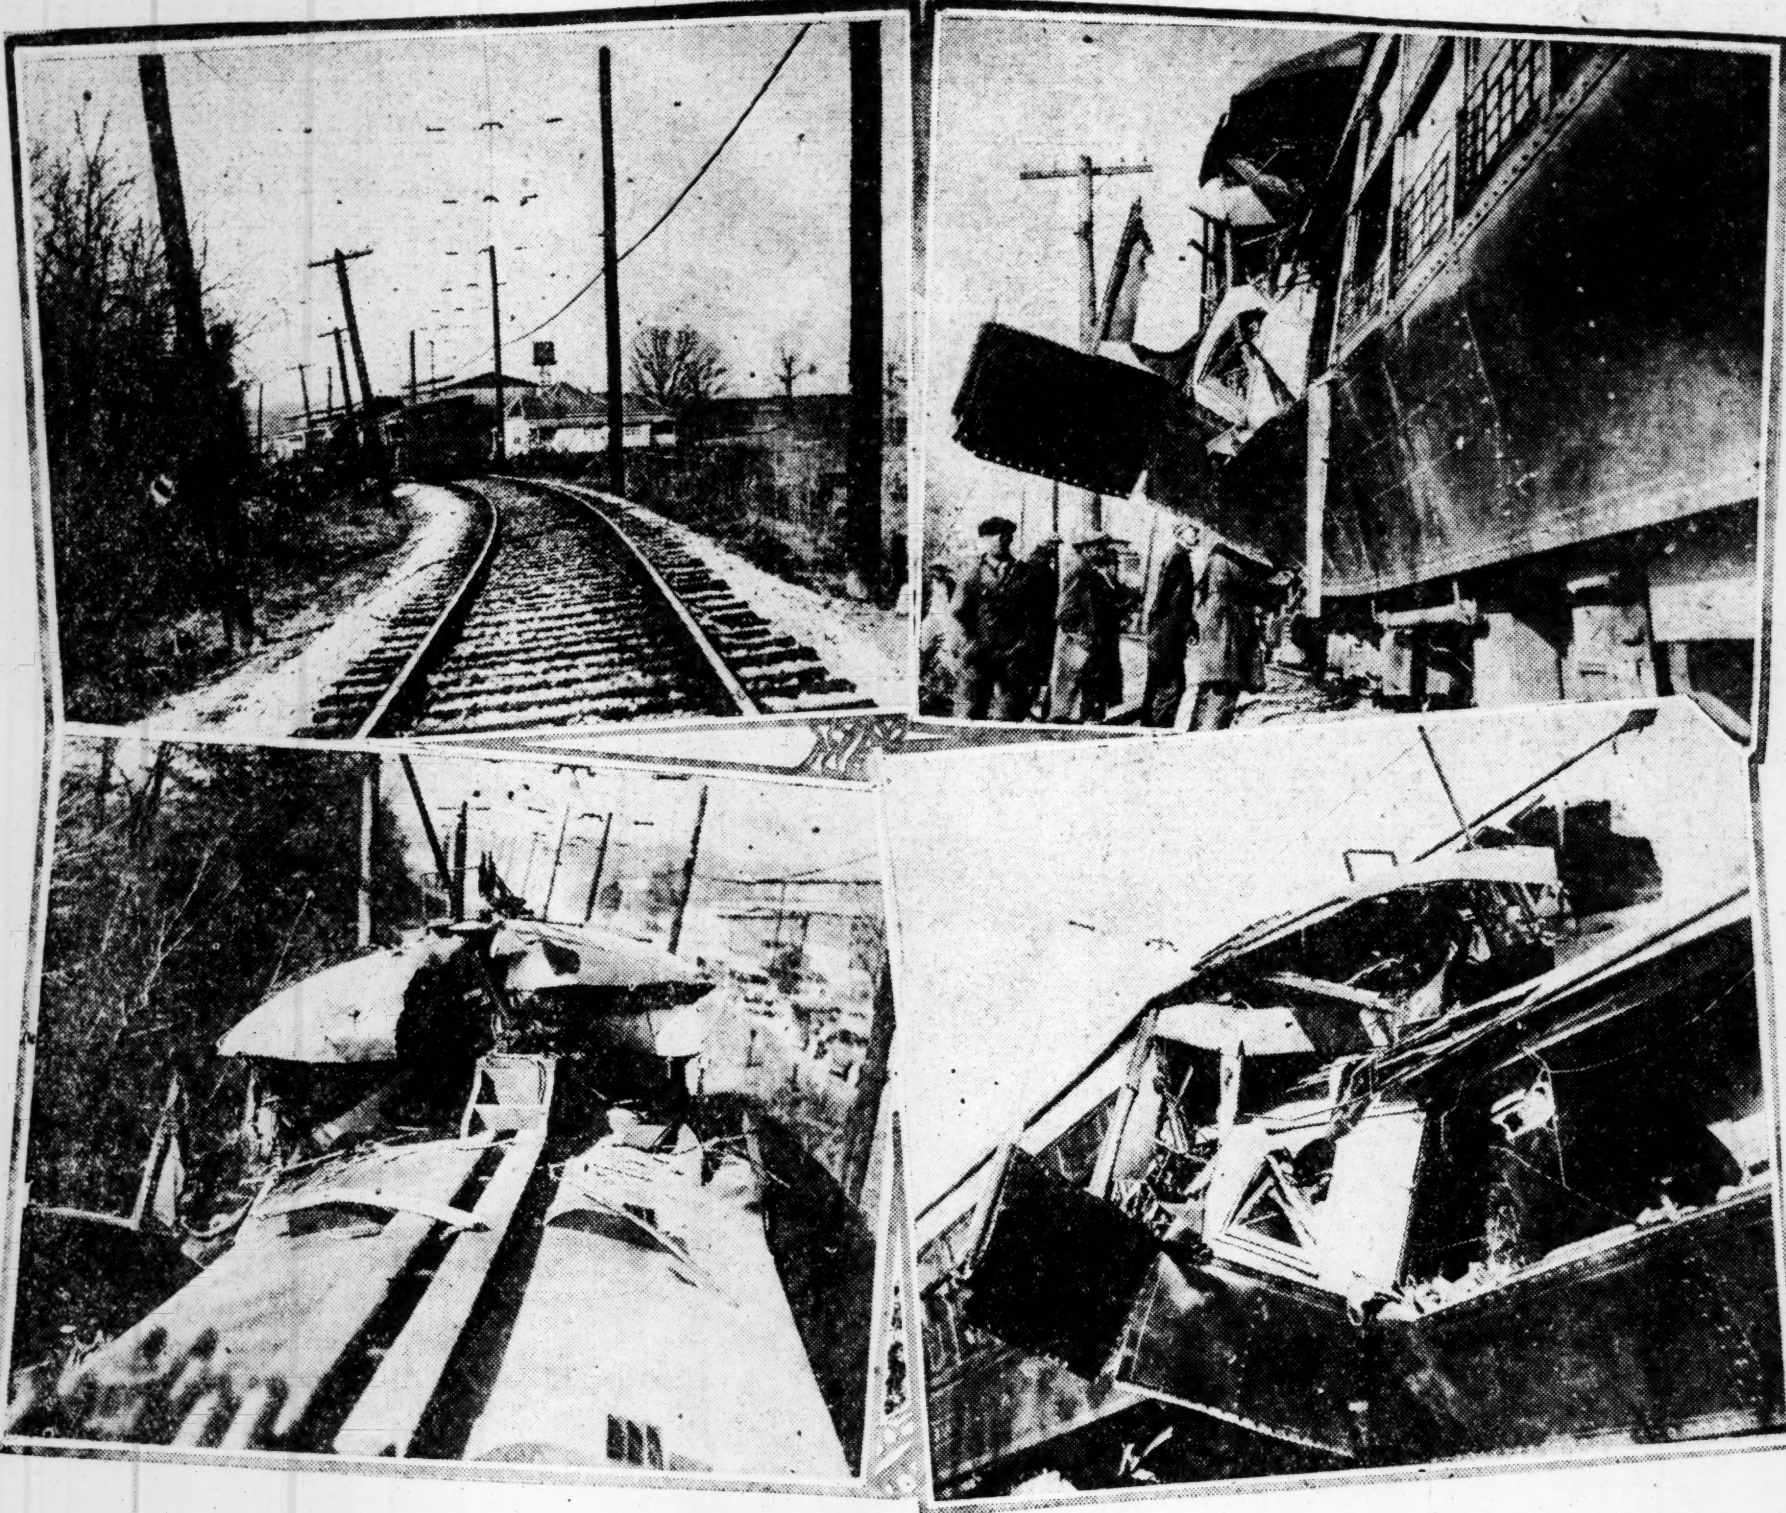

The giant plane dropped gently to the landing field to taxi into the hangar from which the flight started two weeks ago. Mrs. Lindbergh, apparently unaffected by her holiday trip by air to visit her famous son, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, in Mexico City, left the airport quietly in an automobile to rest before returning to her tasks as a teacher at the Cass Technical High school here.

Included in the party besides Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stout, were Mrs. John A. Collins, Stanley Copeland, Ford representative in Mexico; Harry Brooks, pilot, and Harry L. Russell, mechanic.

"The trip was perfectly lovely. I enjoyed every moment of it, and was not worried one minute." Thus Mrs. Lindbergh at her home here tonight enthusiastically described her holiday jaunt by air to visit her famous son.

"Every one was perfectly lovely to us wherever we went," she said. "We never had a moment of worry from the time we left the airport here. Our pilot (Harry Brooks, chief test pilot of the Ford Motor company), was so considerate and never once attempted flight when he thought there was the slightest danger."

Crash Reduces Heavy Interurban Cars to Masses of Twisted Steel

The most disastrous wreck in the history of the Georgia Power company is here pictured. Scenes taken at the collision of the interurban electric cars at Jonesville Monday morning show the havoc wrought when the heavy type cars piled head into one another. Upper left shows the curve on which the cars met, while at the upper right is seen the torn and twisted steel at the point of impact, where the dead and more seriously injured were riding. The two cars from the top of the southbound "deadhead" car, which telescoped the northbound Atlanta-Marietta car, are shown at the lower left while the point of impact is shown at the lower right.

Trolley Wreck Presented Scene of Havoc, Carnage

BY WHITNER CARY.

Like two angry monsters which had met, had fought and had died in each other's embrace was the picture that greeted the eye on looking at the two interurban trolley cars that collided Monday morning a mile south of Marietta, a collision which snuffed out the lives of three persons and took a heavy toll in injuries to a score of others.

The two steel monsters came together, the dead-head, "Lemuel Hunt," plowing into the "Joseph E. Brown" for about a third of its length. While the dead-head car was badly damaged in front where its forward part acted as a battering ram to wreck death and ruin to the passenger-laden "Joseph E. Brown," its damage was far less than that suffered by the latter. The dead-head car was much lighter, having but 10 persons on board, thought it had a trailer.

When the two cars collided the dead-head seemed to mount the other in such a way that all the telescoping took place on the passenger-laden car. The destruction of the front part of this car was complete.

So great was the damage that it hardly seemed possible that any passenger sitting in the front part of this car could have escaped. The dead-head simply plowed through, making ruin of everything in its wake. Every window in the front part of the car was smashed, seats were demolished and crushed as if kindling wood and the whole forward part of the car reduced to an incomplete state of wreckage as one could imagine.

From that point of the passenger car that saw the end of the dead-head's journey to the rear of the car the damage was not so severe, though practically every seat was torn loose or overturned and many windows were broken.

Freezing point this blood quickly turned to scarlet ice, a gruesome reminder hours after of the desolation and havoc wrought.

ATLANTA VICTIM

Meyer Lutz, of 75 Bass street, S. W., who died of injuries in the interurban crash near Marietta.

Catapulted Through Wooden Partition, Only Slightly Hurt

ATLANTA TELLS OF TROLLEY-WRECK HAVOC

How he did a handspike through the glass and wood partition of the smoker on the Marietta-bound car and escaped with bruises and shock, was described by John M. Rudel, of 1021 Greenock street, N. E., member of the lumber firm of Addison-Rudel and company.

Mr. Rudel is confined to his home with a sore back and a bruised shoulder as the result of his catapult through the air. "I had just looked at my watch, which showed the time to be 10:40, when something made me look up in time to see the front end of the other car apparently rushing into our car, though I found out afterward that the inbound car was almost at a standstill," Mr. Rudel said.

"I shut my eyes and tried to grab something to hold onto, but the crash was too quick, and the last I remembered I was going through the air. I came to with people rushing over me to get me out, and my head felt like it was smashed in. I suddenly remembered that I had taken out $14,000 worth of double indemnity insurance several days ago, and believing that I was about to die with a crushed head, the thought of that insurance was somewhat comforting."

"There were only two other men in the smoker at the time of the crash; they were on the other side and did not go through the partition because they were right jam up against it. I gained momentum in my plunge toward the partition because I was sitting very back, to keep my feet on the radiator and sit in the sun."

"Instantly the car came to a grinding, crashing stop, the yells and screams of the injured and those who felt injured arose and added to the horror of that bloody shambles. I noticed one man sitting up in a seat with his head smashed almost flat. Under him was another man who was praying at the top of his voice."

"As soon as I was able to, I made my way to a nearby house and asked a woman if the top of my head was minor. Much to my surprise, my head was all right, but I was as white as a sheet."

"There were many conflicting stories told of how the accident happened, but

J. M. RUDEL.

as near as I could gather, the inbound car was a dead-head, being brought in to town after breaking down in Marietta. Somebody said that the air brakes on our car failed to work."

"I was on my way to Marietta on business and had planned to catch the next car back after completing my errand. As soon as I could get my office, my partner sent out a car and I came home."

The power company started an immediate investigation of the wreck, as did the Georgia public service commission.

Two men missed being victims by seconds. M. M. McNeill, Jr., and W. M. Dodds, Jr., of Marietta, tried to look at the crushed and torn steel and splintered wood.

The power company started an immediate investigation of the wreck, as did the Georgia public service commission.

Few on the Marietta bound car escaped injury. Slight scratches and shock claimed almost all who were not more seriously hurt.

The two cars which figured in the crash, the "Joseph E. Brown" and the "Lemuel P. Hunt," were named after Georgia's war governor and the donor of Grant park. The power company names its interurban cars after distinguished Georgia men.

THREE KILLED, MANY INJURED IN WRECK

saw the southbound coming and started immediately for the rear of his car. Both men lie mangled and maimed in the Nolan hospital at Marietta. Moon is suffering from a broken leg, one eye closed and his face and neck badly lacerated. Motorman Hames is suffering from a wrenched back and other minor injuries.

When the crash came the noise was so great that it was heard by Mrs. J. J. Nally, of Jonesville, who immediately realized that a terrible accident had occurred and telephoned to Marietta for ambulances. She did not see the crash but in a minute after it occurred she saw the people with blood-streaked faces emerging in confusion from the windows and doors of the two cars.

When the ambulances arrived the workers witnessed a scene of grim horror, death and suffering which appalled them. One man, dead, was hanging halfway out of the debris at the front of the two cars where the impact was of such terrible force as to shatter the Joseph E. Brown, almost half its length, which crushed and tore away virtually the entire front platform of the "deadhead" car. Men and women were lying strewn around the wreckage. Some of the women were crying, the men moaning, while two boys lay in the center of the wreckage. Passengers who were not seriously injured immediately came to the assistance of the others and in a few minutes a crowd of rescue workers were lifting the victims in ambulances.

One Woman Killed.
In the coldest weather of the year, the workers quickly brought out the dead and injured. Mrs. Earl McIntyre, of Butlerstown, the only dead woman, and J. G. Hudson, of Gilmore station, were instantly killed. Meyer Lutz, 46 years old, of Atlanta, was still alive when taken from the wreckage, but died in the hospital.

Mr. Lutz was born in Rumania, and was 46 years of age. At the time of the wreck he was on his way to his army store in Marietta. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Harry and Ralph Lutz; a daughter, Mary Lutz; two brothers, Harry Lewis, of Atlanta, and Hyman Lewis, of Cochran; two sisters and his mother, all three of whom are living in Europe.

Hudson, who worked for the Empire Construction company, was the man who was hanging half way out of the car when the rescue workers arrived. His body was moving around and some of the workers thought he was still alive but it developed that he apparently met with instant death. The body of Hudson was apparently moving back and forth and the workers thought he was only injured but it was seen that a boy passenger was pinned underneath and was endeavoring to extricate himself.

Mrs. McIntyre had just boarded the northbound car at Butlerstown, the last stop before Jonesville, where the accident occurred, and had hardly settled into her seat when she was hurled to death.

Motorman Moon, who was bringing the "dead-head" car to Atlanta, carried with him but three passengers, all of them employees of the company, who were standing with him on the front platform. From a cot in the operating room of the Nolan hospital, he declared that he was not to blame for the accident.

"I am in no way to blame," he said. "I left Marietta with my car and turned on the signal light. This signal automatically turns on the red light in the face of a car coming from the other direction. I was never running faster than 15 miles an hour as I knew the other car was due in Marietta at 11 o'clock, which would come in about five minutes. We reached a curve just before the Jonesville station, and I slowed my car down so that if I saw the other car in the block I could stop it quickly. At this reduced rate of speed I rounded the curve and saw the other car coming. I immediately threw on the emergency brake, while the other car was about a hundred yards down the road. It was apparently slowing down and then suddenly seemed to pick-up speed. My car slowed down to about three miles an hour and almost stopped when I turned to run back into my car. That's the last I remember of the accident."

Hames Tells Story.
Motorman Hames, in charge of the passenger-laden northbound car, said he switched on his emergency brake when he saw the southbound car coming and turned back into his car. He said he did not see any red light burning on the block. He said he ran past the light which guards the block with the sign shining in his eyes and that he never at any time saw a red light. He had previously passed the regular southbound car a few minutes before the accident.

J. M. Rudel, of Atlanta, a passenger on the northbound car, experienced a miraculous escape from death in the accident. He was sitting in the smoking compartment in the rear of the car, reading a newspaper. He said he looked up from his paper and saw the other car approaching. He tried to grasp the side of his seat for safety but could find nothing to clutch and as the cars crashed he was hurled through the glass partition in a somersault into the next compartment but was virtually unharmed.

Two of the most seriously injured victims are Louis Millender, a merchant of Atlanta, whose legs were crushed. He was taken to the Marietta hospital for emergency treatment but later was taken to the Piedmont sanitarium. Mrs. Clive White, 32 years old, lived at Fair Oaks. She is suffering with serious internal injuries.

One of the victims is an unidentified boy who is seriously injured and is lying at the Marietta hospital. Although he was visited by scores of people he was not identified and no inquiry had been made concerning him Monday night.

The "Joseph E. Brown," the ill-fated Marietta-bound car, carried nearly all the passengers, as the dead-head southbound car carried only the motorman and three other employees. One of the peculiar features of the accident is that the "Joseph E. Brown" was named in honor of the late Governor Joseph E. Brown and it went to its tragic fate within a mile or two of the home of that statesman.

Large crowds of people visited the scene of the wreck during the day. Neither of the cars left the track and within a short time the road was cleared for traffic. The two cars, wrecked together in a tragic death embrace, were towed together a half a mile down the track toward Atlanta, where wreckers pulled them apart. Both were being towed into Atlanta Monday night.

The cars are of the latest modern interurban type and are equipped with automatic and emergency safety devices. Both are equipped with machinery which automatically applies brakes as the motorman releases his grasp. The emergency equipment, which is thrown on by the motorman, is an extra safeguard. As far as could be learned from passengers on the northbound car it was running at a rapid rate of speed prior to the accident. The motorman of the southbound car stated that he had slowed down to three miles an hour before the crash came.

OPERATOR BLAMED FOR FATAL CRASH

The immediate investigation into the wreck with its terrible toll of dead and mangled and maimed which was instituted by the Georgia Power company led the company to presume that the collision was caused by Motorman Hames running past a red signal into the block rightfully occupied by the southbound car under Motorman Moon. It was stated Monday night.

The southbound car, running "dead-head," that is without passengers and not on schedule, was given orders at Marietta to pass the northbound Atlanta-Marietta car, under Motorman Hames, at Jonesville switch. There is a stretch of single track between Jonesville and Marietta, with a switch for cars to pass.

The northbound car had no knowledge that the other car was on the track, it was stated. But as soon as the southbound car entered the signal block, the red light was thrown against the Hames car at Jonesville. This was a signal to Hames to stop and wait at Jonesville for the Moon car to approach and pass the northbound car.

There are two ways in which the accident could have occurred, it was stated. Either the red signal did not operate when the southbound car entered the signal block, or Hames passed the red light and entered the block against the danger signal.

The only evidence the power company could find was that the signal did operate and that Hames must have passed the red light and entered the block. This is the only presumption that the investigators could arrive at, it was stated.

The company's crew arrived at the scene of the wreck within 20 or 30 minutes after the collision. It was stated. The signal was tested at once and found to operate properly. Hames there failed to see it, or was blinded by sun in his eyes, it was stated.

Hames had been in the habit of passing the regular southbound Marietta-to-Atlanta car before reaching Jonesville. It was stated. This car was passed on schedule Monday morning. The power company must presume, it was stated, that Hames believed he had a clear track into Marietta.

Hames has been with the power company between 10 and 15 years. He has had a good record and has been known as a careful and efficient motorman and had been on the Marietta run regularly for many years.

It was a good record and has been known as a careful and efficient motorman and had been on the Marietta run regularly for many years. While the first indications were that it was mechanical, that the signal in the block did not operate because of the extremely cold weather or for some other reason, this explanation Monday night had been abandoned by the company, which accepted the presumption that the motorman on the northbound car had passed a red signal which would have prevented the crash if it had been observed, it was stated.

The cars on the Marietta line, of the heavy and high-powered interurban type, travel at a fairly high rate of speed with perfect safety, it was said. On the particular curve on which the fatal collision occurred, the track is banked so that a high rate of speed can be maintained. The right of way is owned by the company and the schedules on the line are based on fast transportation. Terrific Impact of Trolleys Heard More Than Mile Off

The terrific crash of the heavy steel interurban electric cars at Jonesville was heard for a mile and more, those living near the scene of the frightful wreck reported Monday afternoon.

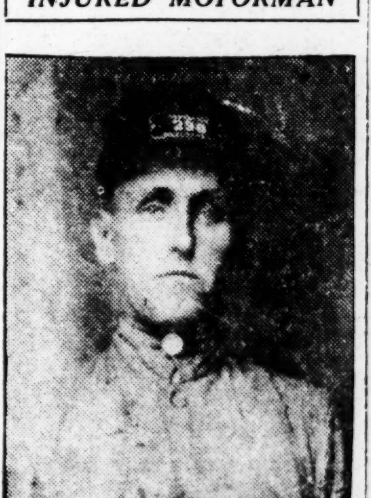

Among the physicians from Atlanta who hurried to the aid of the injured was Dr. T. H. Hanecek, the power company's physician. With him went Dr. R. C. Hanecek, Dr. Walter Lewis Curtis and Dr. W. A. Arnold.

Mrs. J. J. Lalley, of Glovers station, who lives about 100 yards from where the cars crashed and telescoped, was greeted with a vision of terrible horror when she looked toward the scene following the crash. She telephoned to Marietta for ambulance, doctors and nurses with the first call for aid.

After lying helpless for an hour in the wreckage, a young man was rescued and taken to a Marietta hospital when all had been thought removed from the debris. He was in a semi-conscious condition when found by the wrecking crew.

No Rheumatism Now!

S.S.S. and Rheumatism

Simply don't get along together

ARE you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

"After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."

R. L. Busie,
Southern Railway,
Knoxville, Tenn.

"I was very nervous, had hardly any appetite, and suffered with rheumatism. I tried many medicines, but S.S.S. is the one that did me the most good. I am now well, and feel like a new man."

PRESIDENT GREETED 3,000 AT RECEPTION

Washington, January 2.—(United News.)—Policemen in front of the white house stamped their feet to keep warm.

But it didn't seem quite fair because while police stood in the freezing shade of the northern exposure of the white house shivering, several hundred diplomats in brightly-colored uniforms, high officials and army and navy officers in full dress with their ladies were bowed through the big front doors.

The strains of the marine band could be heard outside and there were snatches of gay laughter floating out on the cold air.

Only the elect were to be received before 1 p. m. About 2,500 other citizens lined up before that hour and waved their arms and held their ears and blew on their fingers waiting to be rushed through for one fleeting handshake with the president of the land and his wife. The crowd was one of the smallest in many years.

A Belgian princess, the wife of a French poet and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge were among the best looking and best dressed women there. Mrs. Coolidge wore a handsome dress of black, green and cream crepe and satin, the short skirt of black crepe edged with a hand of cream satin and topped with green above the waist line, the same cream satin forming a bolero effect over the green.

The Princess De Ligne, wife of the new Belgian ambassador, also stood out among the crowd. She wore a French ambassador and poet, ranked with the Princess de Ligne and Mrs. Coolidge in looks and costume. Tall and slender, her dress was black crepe and her hat of silver cloth.

Possible successors to the Coolidges stood in the historic room among other privileged guests, while the crowd filed past the president and his wife, Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Herbert Hoover were there, with other cabinet members and their wives. Senator Curtis of Kansas, also was there, and so was Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

and declared that the board faced a huge task in wisely carrying out the improvement program, provided by the recent successful bond issue for municipal improvement.

Dr. Eubanks, who served as president two successive terms, expressed his appreciation to the members of the board and thanked them for their cooperation.

A rising vote of thanks was given the retiring president, Dr. Eubanks, for his untiring service as head of the board.

Superintendent of schools, Willis A. Sutton, announced that his annual report was practically completed and that he would submit it at the next session of the board.

School Deficit.

Although the school department operated on several thousand dollars less than the budget prepared at the first of 1927, a deficit is due to a cut in the estimated receipts caused by continued operation of the automatic teachers' salary increase by the board, it was pointed out.

A resolution, introduced by James W. Maddox, of the fifth ward, which was intended to place the board of education on record that the salaries

HEARST INFORMED SCORED BY NORRIS

Washington, January 2.—(United News.)—Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska, republican, is in possession of papers which indicate that Miguel Avila, procurer of the allegedly Mexican official documents published in Hearst newspapers, is a Mexican citizen.

Avila recently told the special senate committee, which is inquiring into the origin and authenticity of the Hearst documents, that he was an American citizen. When the committee resumes its investigation tomorrow Avila will be recalled as a witness. He was missing when the committee desired to question him at the last hearing.

Will Submit Document.

Senator Norris, one of the four senators named in the Hearst document as the alleged recipient of money from the Mexican government, said that he had a photostatic copy of an affidavit in which Avila attested to his Mexican citizenship before the Mexican consul at Laredo, Texas. He will submit this to the committee when it reconvenes, he said.

All four of the senators mentioned—No. Hollis, Norris and La Follette—have been cleared by the committee of the charges contained in the Hearst documents. Hearst himself told the committee that he did not believe the senators had any connection with the alleged Mexican slush fund.

Norris also suggested that it would be better if the committee would call upon Hearst to make public his correspondence files as Mexican officials have done so that the committee may know all the details prior to publication of the documents.

TWO SMALL BLAZES CAUSE SLIGHT LOSS

Two fire alarms from the same street number, but on different two corners, were turned into the fire department within a two-minute period Monday afternoon. An alarm was turned in for 588 West Peachtree street at 5:50 o'clock, and another one came in from 588 West street at 5:52 o'clock, the reports show.

Both fires were quickly extinguished without any damage. The first was caused from sparks while heating a frozen water pipe, while the second was caused from an overheated stove in a kitchen.

of teachers in the Atlanta schools continue on the present scale until the board adopts some new schedule, was voted down.

No steps will be taken in regard to salaries until the 1928 budget has been adopted and submitted to the mayor and city council has decided upon the exact amount it will allow for operation of schools.

The 1928 budget must be drafted and adopted before January 10, according to the rules of the board. In stressing its importance, President Powell asserted that he would make every effort to have city council appropriate the board allotment in a lump sum for the entire year instead of pursuing the system in effect that year.

Budget Meeting.

The budget will be considered at a special session of the board to be called by President Powell after he confers with the chairman of the finance committee of city council and arranges for a date at which time the board may confer with this body.

During the year 1927 the board allotment was revised by city council a number of times and certain reductions made. This placed the 1927 board in an embarrassing situation, it was said.

Superintendent Sutton and Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Charge of Business Affairs R. L. Ritchie, made certain recommendations to the board which were unanimously followed, among them changing the date for issuing salary checks to school employees from the tenth to the first of each month.

A committee of five citizens representing the parent-teacher organizations of the city will meet with Superintendent Sutton and his assistants at 4:30 o'clock today to go over the tentative budget drawn up by Mr. Ritchie, with a view to assisting the board in obtaining necessary funds for the next year.

Dr. Eubanks reported to the board that salary vouchers amounting to $2,669,000.03 had been issued during the year and that the last voucher issued, which was still outstanding, amounted to $101,171.21, making a total of $2,770,231.24 expended on salaries of school employees.

W. C. Slate, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, recommended that a committee of five be appointed to act as a purchasing committee. Action was deferred.

Lady Visitors.

The following board of lady visitors were elected: Mrs. Carl Neuner, first ward; Mrs. B. F. Fontaine, second; Mrs. W. C. Byers, third; Mrs. W. L. Schell, fourth; Mrs. E. E. Jones, fifth; Mrs. J. E. President Powell appointed the following standing committees: Home contact committee, Dr. R. M. Eubanks, chairman; W. W. Gaines, W. C. Slate and the president of the board as ex-officio members. Current expenditures, John L. Hancock, chairman; W. W. Gaines, Dr. R. M. Eubanks, James W. Maddox and a member of city council. Building and grounds, Roy D. Warren, chairman; W. C. Slate, J. H. Landers, Dr. M. M. Burns and Mrs. A. E. Wilson, Health service, Mrs. A. E. Wilson, chairman; Dr. Burns, James W. Maddox, Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson and Mrs. Paul West, John L. Hancock, Roy D. If Alertox Fails
In Constipation
Call A Doctor

This unique preparation acts in from 10 to 30 minutes; gives one thorough elimination and no more; does not interfere with duties, habits or diet, perfectly harmless, and guaranteed to remove, in one action, more poison bile from the system than any other known formula, leaving you buoyant, vivacious and alert.

These are but a few of the distinct advantages of Alertox, which flushes the alimentary tract, re-establishes a natural, healthy liver and bowel action and is much quicker and far more effective than calomel, oils and nauseating cathartics that merely good the liver and work you to death.

Alertox also alkalizes the system and thoroughly cleanses it of the poisons that cause auto-intoxication. Ask any one who has tried it. Your druggist has Alertox; if not, send direct upon receipt of price, 60c and $1.00, Crystal Carbonic Laboratory, Dept. 30, Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

If Alertox Fails
In Constipation
Call A Doctor

This unique preparation acts in from 10 to 30 minutes; gives one thorough elimination and no more; does not interfere with duties, habits or diet, perfectly harmless, and guaranteed to remove, in one action, more poison bile from the system than any other known formula, leaving you buoyant, vivacious and alert.

These are but a few of the distinct advantages of Alertox, which flushes the alimentary tract, re-establishes a natural, healthy liver and bowel action and is much quicker and far more effective than calomel, oils and nauseating cathartics that merely good the liver and work you to death.

Alertox also alkalizes the system and thoroughly cleanses it of the poisons that cause auto-intoxication. Ask any one who has tried it. Your druggist has Alertox; if not, send direct upon receipt of price, 60c and $1.00, Crystal Carbonic Laboratory, Dept. 30, Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

COLD TAKES TOLL OF 50 DEAD IN WEST

Chicago, January 2.—(United News.)—Two days more of the sub-zero weather, which has caused more than fifty deaths in the middle west, were forecast by the weather bureau tonight.

North central states were slowly digging their way out of the snow which began falling Saturday, and traffic probably will be normal Tuesday unless there is additional heavy snowfall. Low temperatures, the maximum being only slightly above zero, will continue, however.

More snow was predicted for Illinois, Indiana and southern Iowa. Temperatures will moderate slightly in those localities also.

There were 26 deaths attributed to cold in Chicago, caused by exposure, fires and railroad and automobile accidents. Temperatures here reached a minimum of 8 below zero in the city, and in the suburbs unofficial readings were as low as 17 below zero.

An engineer was killed in a Louisville and Nashville railroad collision at Mount Vernon, Ill. Two others were injured. One man was killed and 28 hurt in an interurban collision just outside the Chicago city limits. Both accidents were indirectly due to the storm.

Fire destroyed the Shelbyville, Ind. city hall and did damage estimated at $100,000. Caroline White, 88, was killed at Southport, Ind., in a fire originating from an overheated flue.

Four persons died in grade-crossing accidents attributable to the weather in central Illinois. Hundreds were marooned in buses. Members of the Williamsville, Ill. High School team were forced to walk 10 miles through snow when they became marooned after a game.

Three persons died of exposure in Indiana, including Albert Hinsel, 65, one of southern Indiana's wealthiest farmers. He was found dead in a snowdrift on one of his farms. Ten persons died in St. Louis, eight of them from exposure. Two more were killed by the cold in Pittsburgh.

Temperatures in Kansas and Missouri were well below zero. A minimum of 30 below was recorded in Nebraska. The cold wave continued severe in the southwest. It was 11 degrees above zero in Fort Worth, Texas, to day and almost equally cold in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Although it was extremely cold in the northwest states, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana, few deaths were reported. Bismarck, N. D., had the lowest temperature in the United States, 34 degrees below zero. The northernmost snowbound some effects of the weather had not been completely reported.

Kentucky, Tennessee and other southern states were exceptionally cold. A party of scientists who climbed Mount LeConte, near Knoxville, Tenn., reported it was 20 below zero at the summit.

Temperatures in Tampa and Jacksonville, Fla., were well below freezing, and at Asheville, N. C., the official reading was 4 below.

Automobile traffic was almost entirely stopped in rural districts. Most bus lines abandoned schedules because of closed roads, although some companies cleared their lines with huge snow plows.

SOUTHWEST GRIPPED BY INTENSE COLD.

Kansas City, January 2.—(P)—The grip of the intense cold wave in the west and southwest relaxed somewhat today, but temperatures remained low and with the prospect of rising but slowly. Snow followed sub-zero temperatures in many sections, and more was predicted.

The Pacific northwest was buried under a heavy snow, which blocked traffic and interrupted wire service in Washington and Oregon, west of the Cascade mountains. More snow was predicted for eastern and central Washington. Ten inches was forecast for Spokane. One man was killed at Kelso, Wash., when a snow-laden wooden awning collapsed.

THREE FREEZE TO DEATH IN NEW YORK.

New York, January 2.—(P)—Three men were found frozen to death today in the city's first real cold wave of the winter.

The thermometer dropped to 11 degrees above zero at 5 o'clock this morning, but after that rose steadily, passing the 20-degree mark at noon and climbing as the day passed.

Freezing houses were taxed to capacity. Almost 10,000 sought beds last night and preparations were made to handle a like number tonight.

THREE OHIOANS FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH.

Cleveland, Ohio, January 2.—(P)—The death toll from the cold wave that struck Ohio New Year's eve mounted to three today with near zero temperatures reported throughout the state. An aged man was found frozen to death in his home at Gallipolis today and a recluse living in a shack near Akron was found dead from the cold.

FOUR MORE VICTIMS DIE IN ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, January 2.—(P)—Four additional deaths from exposure to the zero weather were reported here today, bringing the total since Friday to 10. All were laborers and several were found frozen to death in unheated rooms.

The St. Louis fire department has received 150 alarms during the past three days as overheated stoves and furnaces caused numerous blazes and thousands of dollars damage.

THE GUMPS—A FRIEND IN NEED

The Woman in the Case
BY LOUIS TRACY

SYNOPSIS.

John Arden, returning to his rooms at the Palace hotel, London, in the early hours of the morning, breaks in on the lock and enters a room for a luxurious suite by the night watchman, who assures him that the room is unoccupied. He is about to retire when two women enter the apartment. One is addressed as Esme and the other as Mrs. Sinclair. Arden, hiding, hears them speak of the sudden death of Lord Farndale. Without being observed he lets himself out of the apartment. The next morning he reads of the mysterious death of the peer. A little later he sees Esme on the street and is not far from her when she is knocked down by a motorcycle. Her dress is torn and he offers her his raincoat. She accepts it and he offers to get her a taxi, telling her that they live in the same hotel. Later Arden learns that the police know the identity of the two women who visited Lord Farndale, but cannot locate them. They watch the railway terminals. Arden sees Esme at one of the stations and behind Mrs. Sinclair's back takes her away with him to avoid arrest. Mrs. Sinclair, in fear of being detained as a material witness, was about to cross over to Paris with Esme. Arden takes the girl to the rooms of his friend, Andy Burke, who turns the apartment and his housekeeper over to her. Burke is invited to share Jimmie Davidson's rooms for the night. Before leaving Andy's apartment the three friends and Detective Furzeaux of Scotland Yard, who has joined them, hold a conference in Esme's behalf.

On leaving, Furzeaux suggests to Arden that he call on Mrs. Sinclair, who is back at the Palace hotel, before going to bed, but he learns nothing from her beyond catching a glimpse of Juan de Braganza, who claims, in spite of the girl's denial, to be Esme's husband.

At the coroner's inquest into the death of Lord Farndale, Mrs. Sinclair is represented by a lawyer named Frankland. On the advice of Furzeaux, Esme goes back to Mrs. Sinclair. Arden meets Esme in the park and tells her he loves her.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

ARDEN MAKES HIS WILL.

It did not occur to Arden that two young people in love had seldom, if ever, exchanged stranger effusions on the very day they had become engaged, for this single minded young man had not the slightest doubt that Esme would marry him as soon as the present tangle was cleared up.

Arden breakfasted with Andy the next morning, much to Mrs. O'Callaghan's surprise. The meeting served one good purpose—the two were able to discuss the present position of the Farndale affair in all its bearings.

"What beats me, Andy, is—who killed Lord Farndale?" mused Arden, aloud.

"You bloody pirate—what has that got to do with it?"

"Everything, surely."

"Sorra a bit, or mighty little. That poor old idiot—he was nothing else—was booked for Kingdom Come any day, and whoever tipped the scale by giving him the last dose of antimony thought he had lived long enough already."

"Don't forget that I met Buchanan, the butler, yesterday afternoon," said Arden. "He didn't say much while I was there, but Esme told me afterward that he knew nothing about her father since he left England nearly thirty years ago."

"That may be, but he knows a deuce of a lot about Lord Farndale. Butlers always do. Luckily, they never learn to write, and therefore leave no memoirs, or Debutet would have to publish a new Peerage, not to mention the baronets and the landed gentry. My sacred aunt! What smithereens there'd be in ten thousand china closets! I told the baronets are the worst of the lot."

"Talking of aunts—I had clean forgotten it—old Buchanan said Esme has a great aunt still living somewhere in France, in the south. I think."

"A great aunt! How old?"

"Seventy-four."

Burke snatched at that morning's newspaper, and searched for the heading, "The Farndale Case."

"By the pipers, that played before Moses, here she is!" he cried. "Letitia, there's a name for you! Letitia, Lady Doone, widow of Sir Archibald Doone, the famous geologist—holly smoke, can't you hear the dry bones rattling?"—sister of the late Lord Farndale, resides occasionally in Paris, at a flat in that Rue Donau, but is more often to be found on the Promenade des Anglais at Nice, where she occupies a charming villa. She is the senior member of the family, being two years older than the deceased pair. It is believed that she has not visited England for many years. During the great war she took a prominent part in the charitable and nursing associations established by the British colony in Nice. . . . Seventy-four! I dunno. I can't see you handing over Esme to the care of the toothless relic of a geologist and a sister of that other old fossil, Farndale. What about it?"

"If she is not more dead than alive it is her business to find Esme, not Esme to run after her."

"And so say I. Requiescat in pace! Not that there is much peace for the weary in the Rue Donau, unless it has changed since I knew Paris. Must you be going? So long, old top! Have you made your will? Crash lightly!"

Arden had no difficulty in avoiding observation at the aerodrome. Several machines were starting about the same time, so there was plenty of bustle and movement. He saw De Braganza enter a big biplane, with seven other passengers. It took a long run before rising, and he overheard a mechanic say:

"Nearly a peak load, this time! But she'll lighten before she passes Boulogne, and the wind is just right."

Then that not wholly reassuring remark of Andy Burke's about a will came, unbidden, into his mind. He went to an office, secured two sheets of notepaper and a stamp, and wrote on one the date and hour and three lines:

"I leave everything of which I die possessed to my promised wife, Esme Bernore, granddaughter of the late Lord Farndale, now residing in the Park Palace hotel, London."

He asked a couple of men seated at a nearby desk to witness his signature, but one of them seemed to have some knowledge of wills and their peculiarities.

"Before you sign, sir," he said, "you must add the attesting clause above the space reserved for our signatures, stating that it is signed by you in the presence of both of us."

That was done. A scribbled note to Mr. Winter explained that the inclosure would become effective in case of accident. When the letter was posted Arden felt that he was free now of all responsibility, so he strolled out to watch the loading of his own machine. It was not so large as De Braganza's, but was equipped with far more powerful engines.

Before taking his seat he spoke to the pilot, one of the best known aviators in the service, as it happened.

"Do you really count on reaching Paris before those other planes?" he asked.

"O, yes! Nothing in that. If we were really in a hurry I'd catch the lot between here and Boulogne. As it is, you will be able to drop in on any of 'em before we pass Abbeville, if you care to take a chance."

"I'm lucky to have a trip in such a flyer."

"Well, you are. This bus was put on especially about 9 o'clock last night. You, or some one else on board, must have a pull with the company."

Arden laughed.

"Not I," he said. "I wouldn't know how or where to begin pulling. I haven't crossed since 1917. . . . And, dash it all! you took me. I remember your voice. We panicked knee deep in a ploughed field near Armentieres, and the machine stuck, there till it was bombed by a beetle."

"Well, I'm jiggered!" cried the pilot. "You were in the Sappers?"

"Yes."

"Let's have a chin on the other side. I must be off now."

So it was quite a cheerful and delightful set of people who climbed down to Mother Earth at Le Bourget less than two and a half hours after leaving London.

Arden sought his pilot friend and ascertained that De Braganza's machine would probably land its passengers within half an hour. Regrettably he had to decline an offer of a run into Paris in a private car.

"I have to look after some one," he explained, "so I must wait here till he turns up."

"Where are you staying?" said his wartime comrade.

"At the Metairie."

Stubbs Barnes Wedding Rites Solemnized at St. Luke's Church

The marriage of Miss Louise Gay Stubbs and William Chambers Barnes, of Ottawa, Ill., was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock in St. Luke's Episcopal church in Peachtree street. The Rev. R. H. High Moore, rector of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a fashionable assembly of relatives and intimate friends.

The church was elaborately decorated with palms and ferns. A vase holding Easter lilies was placed on the altar, and the aisle was lined with pink roses and Easter lilies, while California ferns and pink roses in artistic arrangement formed a background for the bride and groom.

The bride wore a pink satin gown, trimmed in rhinestones. A cluster of orchids completed the lovely costume. Mrs. Evelyn Gray, who is also an aunt of the bride, was costumed in white chiffon, lavishly embroidered in crystals. She wore a shoulder bouquet of white roses and a delicate tiara of pearls.

Reception at Billmore.

Dr. and Mrs. Somerville entertained at a reception at the Billmore, following the ceremony. The bride and groom, the bridesmaids, Mrs. Gray, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Evans, the groom's mother, were the guests in the Georgian ballroom. A pyramid of palms and California ferns, starred with pedestal baskets holding pink roses and Easter lilies, formed a background before which they stood. An oval table covered with an imported lace cloth, had for its central decoration a five-tiered wedding cake, topped with pink roses, and a basket made of pink roses, filled with pink roses. The cake was decorated with a floral band of lavender sweet peas, pink roses and salmon larkspur. The bride and groom were seated in the four corners of the ballroom and the bridesmaids, the groom's mother, and the groom's sister, were seated in the center. An orchestra played an appropriate musical program.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes left for Florida and Cuba on the afternoon of Tuesday. The bride and groom were accompanied by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Gray, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Evans, the groom's mother, in a two-piece motor car. The bride and groom were accompanied by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Gray, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Evans, the groom's mother, in a two-piece motor car.

Bridal Party.

Mrs. Allen F. Moore, Jr., of Ottawa, Ill.; Mrs. Catherine Gay Sanders, Miss Ethen Kunz, of Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Miss Sarah Paul Watts, of Charlottesville, Va.; and Miss Maria Brown formed the charming group of bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in peach-colored tulle, the skirts finished with a wide band of white tulle, and the bodices covered in tulle. Clusters of French roses finished the left side of the skirts, with streamers of peach-colored ribbon extending to the hem of the costumes. They carried bouquets of lavender sweet peas, pink roses, and salmon larkspur. The groomsmen were Ryburn G. Clay, Joseph S. Ruffe, Jr., James Johnston, Edward Gay and Thomas Blake, of Orlando, Fla. The ushers included Thomas B. Paine, Ewell Gay, Lowry Arnold, Ten Eyck Brown, James S. Dickey and Joseph S. Ruffe, Sr., Allen F. Moore, Jr., of Ottawa, Ill., was best man for Mr. Barnes.

Beautiful Bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Dr. John W. Somerville, with whom she was a sister. She was a radiant beauty in a V-neck gown of ivory satin which enhanced her brunette loveliness. The gown was finished with a wide band of white tulle, and the bodices covered in tulle. Clusters of French roses finished the left side of the skirts, with streamers of peach-colored ribbon extending to the hem of the costumes. Handsome Gowns.

Mrs. John W. Somerville, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in a shimmering green crepe, embroidered in rhinestones and jade bead design, and wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Mrs. Albert Barnes, of Decatur, Ill., the groom's mother, wore an exquisite costume of white chiffon, elaborately beaded in crystals, and a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Edwards S. Gay, Sr., grandmother of the bride, wore a costume of black Chantilly lace veiling satin, and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies.

Mrs. John Evans, of Ottawa, Ill., the groom's sister, wore an attractive gown of orange tulle, with a wide band of white tulle, and the bodices covered in tulle. Clusters of French roses finished the left side of the skirts, with streamers of peach-colored ribbon extending to the hem of the costumes. They carried bouquets of lavender sweet peas, pink roses, and salmon larkspur.

If Over-Fat Try this easy way To Lose It

Do it for beauty's sake, for new health and fitness. If you have tried the hard ways without success, learn what this pleasant way can do.

Some twenty years ago research men discovered a cause of excess fat. It lies in lack of certain elements which turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat. They found and widely tested a way to combat that cause.

Then that method was embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. The form is given in every box, also the reasons for results. Users know what they are taking, and why.

Marmola has been used for 20 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others the results. That is on reason why excess fat has become almost the exception.

Abnormal exercise or diet is not advised, though moderation helps. Users of Marmola simply take four tablets daily with their meals, and the fat comes off. They know why it comes down—in a natural way—so they have no fear of harm.

Try this modern method, which so many have employed for so long. Watch the results for a little while and judge for yourself what they mean to you. Do this now. Go order a box today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out he will get them at once from his jobber.

Drama Authority Speaks Today At Woman's Club

"The Theater Now and Then" will be the subject of the address by Frank Lee Short, president of the American Theater association and editor of the dramatic department of the Christian Science Monitor, who speaks at 8:30 o'clock this evening in the banquet hall of the Atlanta Woman's club, under the auspices of the Atlanta Drama league, of which Mrs. A. Ten Eyck Brown is president.

Mr. Short, whose connection with the American Theater association will render his address this evening of especial interest, has been responsible for many forward movements in the development of the drama in this country. His lecture is being anticipated with pleasure.

Officers of the Drama league are: Mesdames Brown, president; John M. Stanton, first vice president; J. E. Sommerfield, second vice president; John R. Hornaday, third vice president; Marvin Jerry, secretary, and Miss Ellen Palmer, treasurer.

Tickets may be obtained today at the Cable Piano company, according to an announcement by officials in charge.

Miss Ruth Lowrey Weds Milton Smith.

Cartersville, Texas, January 2.—The wedding of Miss Ruth Lowrey to Milton Smith, of Presidio, Texas, was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. H. G. Lowrey, at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, December 28, Dr. Jesse M. Dodd, of College Station, Texas, officiating.

The bride and groom left immediately for their new home at the First Baptist church of this city, performed the ceremony in the presence of a group of relatives and friends.

Miss Louise Phillips, maid of honor, Master Arnold Loflin, cousin of the groom, was ring bearer. The groom entered with his best man, Edward Dodd, of Gainesville. Just preceding the bride came little Miss Alice Mary New, strewing flowers along the bridal path from a basket of pink roses.

The bride entered with her mother, who gave her in marriage. She was beautiful in her bridal gown of white tulle, draped with white tulle, and wearing a white veil. Her train was of white tulle edged with satin. She carried an exquisite bouquet of white roses showered with lilies of the valley and tied with a fluffy white satin bow. Her train was carried by her niece, Miss Helia Leo, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Gen. and Mrs. Davis Are Honor Guests At Lovely Tea-Dance

Among the prominent social affairs assembling the members of the military contingent was the tea-dance at which Colonel and Mrs. George F. Baltzell and Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Walter O. Boswell entertained at the Officers' club in Fort McPherson, honoring Major General and Mrs. Richmond Pearson Davis, who have arrived recently to make their home in Fort McPherson.

Receiving with Colonel and Mrs. Baltzell, Colonel and Mrs. Boswell were General and Mrs. Davis. Assisting in the entertaining were Messdames Harry J. Keely, John J. Hester, Robert J. C. Chandler, Malcolm Fortier, Stanley C. Blanton, Furman Hardee, Samuel C. Harrison and A. R. Bolling.

Those who were invited for this occasion included a large number of members of the army set and friends from Atlanta, with many of the most popular visitors to Atlanta for the holidays.

Another lovely compliment to Mrs. Davis will be the bridge-luncheon at which Mrs. Davis Merriam will be hostess Thursday, January 5, at the Piedmont Driving club.

Mr., Mrs. Chambers Are Honor Guests At Dinner in Macon

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Chambers, of Atlanta, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peavy, were the guests of honor at the beautiful dinner party given Friday night by Mr. and Mrs. Peavy at their attractive home in Ingleside.

The living room, dining room and den, where the tables were arranged, were effectively decorated for the occasion with sprays of holly and clusters of pink roses, pink snapdragons and pink begonia. In the den the Christmas colors of red and green prevailed and on the paneled walls hung Christmas wreaths lighted with tiny blue, red and green lights. Vases of pink roses were used as center decorations on the seven small tables at which the guests were seated. Following the elaborate dinner, bridge was played until 12 o'clock.

The hosts were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. J. R. Harwell, Miss Elizabeth Peavy and Mrs. Oscar Spivey. The guests included Messrs. and Mesdames Louis Tharpe, Charles Hillman, Freeman Hart, Leon Brown, Harry Collins, Alex. Goodman, Ben Vainwright, Leo Huckabee, Oscar Spivey, Martin Meadows, Evans Robson, Baldwin Martin, Herbert Tharpe, Wilbur Collins, Hall Kahn, and Edgar Chambers.—Macon Telegraph.

Mr. Edgeworth Honors Pep B. Y. P. U.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Vandegriff, 1640 Rodgers avenue, in West End, was the scene of a gathering Friday evening, December 29, when Rowland T. Edgeworth, newly elected president of the Pep B. Y. P. U., of the Baptist tabernacle, entertained the officers of the union at a banquet.

The decorations in the living and dining rooms were suggestive of the holiday season. John C. Vandegriff, retiring president, presided as toastmaster.

Those present included Misses Edith McKinney, Harriet Robinson, Dora and Fannie Mae Payne, Irene Lambert and Anna Isakson, Jack Maddox, George A. Burton, Robert C. Irwin, W. Newton Ferguson, Rowland T. Edgeworth, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Vandegriff.

Past Grand Matron O. E. S. Visits Here.

Mrs. Nancy Heard Davis, past grand matron of the Grand chapter, O. E. S., of Georgia, stopped over in Atlanta en route from Orlando, Fla., to Royston, Ga., where she will resume her duties as principal of the high school there. Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, worthy grand-marshal of the general grand chapter, O. E. S., entertained Mrs. Davis at a New Year's breakfast at the Henry Grady hotel Sunday morning.

To End Severe Cough Quickly, Try This

For real results, this old home-made remedy beats them all. Easily prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous home-made remedy. The immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiac, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for 22½ ounces of Pinex with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

I HAVE SAID IN MY HEART

BY IDAH MCLONE GIBSON.

By IDAH MCLONE GIBSON

"I think I am growing old," said a dear woman to me the other day. "Why does that thought intrude itself just now?" I asked. "Because I am beginning to grow more tolerant of my own sex. When I was younger I used to say, 'I don't like women and they don't like me.' Men seem to understand me better, and are always ready with advice and sympathy. Now, I have come to understand that neither I nor the man was always sincere. It was the sex instinct of attraction which made me more tolerant of the man's opinions, and he more sympathetic with my inexperience."

"I realize now that my mental affinity to men was always a sop to my vanity, and my temperamental antipathy to women came from a magnificent indifference to please."

Perhaps this is true.

As a woman approaches middle age she undergoes a psychic change. She is broadened by the practical education that every-day life brings, and mellowed by experience. She learns to appreciate her own sex. She finds excuses for characteristics that once seemed to her frailties to be despised.

Girlhood with its mistakes and frivolities is but a mirage of periods of her own youth.

She can pardon, now, the woman who retails a spicy bit of scandal, provided the gossip hurts only herself.

She is always ready to hold out her hand to those that err. She finds that, seen through glasses of tolerance, all women have good in them, and that the faults of both men and women are the same and come from mistaken ideas and mistaken ideals.

When a woman has reached middle age, she—if she amounts to anything at all—begins to know that intolerance means ignorance, or a mind so small that it cannot appreciate this wonderful life we are living. I have always contended that intolerance in those who should know life is the unpardonable sin.

Memo: Knowledge is one of the compensations of middle age.

DIET AND HEALTH

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ARE YOU A NYCTALOPE?

Nyctalopia.

Do you see perfectly well during the day, with a good light but poorly at night, or with reduced illumination? (Of course, I mean less than you should be expected to see). Then you have nyctalopia, or, in understandable words, night blindness.

Better look to your diet, for there is a form of night blindness which may be due to a wrong diet—especially one that is deficient in vitamins. Sometimes there is a history of exposure to light; the so-called snow blindness is a type of this. But even in these cases, there is believed to be a deficient diet as a basis. Nyctalopia is especially observed among the inmates of prisons, workhouses and asylums, where the diet, probably, is not ideal by any means.

Day Blindness (Hemeralopia).

Hemeralopia is the name given to the condition in which the sight is better at dusk, or in feeble illumination, than in bright light. This may be found in toxic conditions, and in cases where there are scar tissues from inflammation in parts of the eye relating to the pupil. These people see better in feeble light because the pupil dilates and permits vision through the unscarred portion. This day blindness may also be due to general random conditions, especially if there is marked eye strain. Here again we have to think of a correct diet as a factor of relief, as well as the correction of the eye strain by glasses.

If you read last week's papers on the use of liver in the diet of pernicious anemia patients, you will be interested in knowing that as far back as Pliny (23-79 A. D.) the use of liver is highly extolled for night blindness. In one of the translations of his work is the following: ".....

Twenty-two guests were invited for the affair.

THE CONNOISSEUR

Mr. Van de View's Resolutions Are Doomed To Fail

Mr. Van de View, indulging in a sorrowful lament, That the time he spends with ladies is very poorly spent, Is resolving very firmly that in nineteen-twenty-eight He'll attend to business matters and to other things of weight.

And in looking for the words in which to put his resolution, He is glancing out the window for a mental contribution, But, alas! a misadventure of adversity is that For he sees the most bewitching little polka-dotted hat.

And another lady in a little turban made of fur Is a tantalizing vision to the wretched Connoisseur; Now a friend of his is wearing it with pretty animation And his resolution hurriedly adopts a reservation.

An exception he will make of them which readily applies To the lady in the bonnet with a brim around the eyes; And his resolutions failing, Mr. Van de View can see That to banish thought of ladies takes a better man than he.

Miss Gladys Ellerbe Weds Mr. Dean.

Rome, Ga., December 31.—The marriage of A. D. Dean and Miss Gladys Ellerbe took place Thursday evening at the Berry school. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles M. Lee, chaplain of the schools, in the Mount Berry chapel, which was filled with students, faculty members and friends of the bride and groom.

Grover Ford, 20, instructor in chemistry and physics at Berry college, acted as best man. Miss Mittie Ellerbe, sister of the bride and a student at Berry, was maid of honor.

Miss Dee Conger, registrar of the schools, was bridesmaid and Dr. Walter Tolben, director of the Berry dental clinic, served as head usher. Randolph and Virginia Green, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Green, served as ringbearer and flower girl.

The bride wore a tan flat crepe gown with accessories to match. She was given in marriage by Miss Martha Berry, founder and director of the school. Harvey Wells, instructor in science at the Mount Berry School for Boys, sang "Oh, Promise Me." Miss Alice Warden, chorister at Berry college, played the wedding march.

SCHOONER'S CREW SAVED BY TANKER

Plymouth, England, January 2.—(P) The story of two days' heroic fight to save the crew of the Newfoundland schooner Ena A. Moulton was told today when the American tanker Dartford arrived with the six members of the crew of the schooner rescued December 19 in mid-ocean.

A terrific storm was raging when the Dartford's commander, Captain Kilmer, responded to distress signals from the schooner. The latter vessel was waterlogged and her canvas had been blown to ribbons, while the crew was exhausted by long hours at the pumps.

Lines from the Dartford heaved aboard the helpless schooner were snatched three times and the vessels were torn apart, but the Dartford returned again and again dauntlessly to her lifesaving task. The American ship fought huge waves and was lashed by a hurricane for 37 hours until the night of December 19, when the schooner's crew finally was hauled aboard.

Before departing from the derelict, the Dartford set the Ena A. Moulton ablaze to prevent her becoming a danger to navigation.

Slain Policeman Buried in Griffin; Masons Officiate

Griffin, Ga., January 2.—(Special.) Policeman Oscar Atkinson, who was killed Saturday night by Lee Pryor when he was attempting to arrest Pryor, was buried in Oak Hill cemetery this afternoon with impressive services. The funeral was held from the First Baptist church, with the pastor of five central churches officiating. The Masons had charge of the services at the grave.

Sunday night the local knights of Ku Klux Klan visited the Atkinson home and paid their respects to the deceased, who was a member of the order. The body lay in state Monday morning with the fiery cross of the Ku Klux Klan at the head of the casket.

Pryor is confined to the county jail without bail. The grand jury will meet in regular session January 3 and it is expected that Pryor will be indicted then and probably brought to trial at the regular term of superior court during the week of January 16. Before he moved to Griffin Pryor shot Shirley Harrison in Zebulon in 1908, wounding but not killing him. He was tried in Pike county superior court.

BROOKHART SEEKS TO FIX BANK RATE

Washington, January 2.—(P)—Fixing by law of the redemptive rate of the federal reserve banking system at 3 per cent is proposed by Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, in a series of amendments to the federal reserve act.

Mr. Brookhart, who is a member of the senate banking committee, also would permit federal reserve banks to transact deposit business and would outlaw speculative loans for redemptive purposes by all national banks.

Charging that the international bankers were controlling the credit of the nation, the Iowa senator declared today that a drive will be made soon after the first of the year to force the federal reserve bank to raise the redemptive rates above the present level of 3-1/2 per cent.

"With more than 40 per cent of the corporations operating at a loss," he said, "and with 90 per cent of the farmers in the same condition and with high interest rates one of the principal causes of this situation, it is high time for drastic action by the congress of the United States."

SHOE MEN SAY FOOTWEAR PRICES WILL BE HIGHER

Boston, January 2.—(P)—Higher shoe prices, as a result of rising prices of hides and leather, were predicted by the New England Shoe and Leather association in a statement tonight, asserting that a price of leather used in the manufacture of shoes has increased approximately 35 per cent in the last 12 months, the statement added.

"Just how long this situation will continue it is impossible to predict, but in the face of the largely unmet prices, manufacturers will find it necessary to get an advance commensurate with the advance in raw materials, and, in addition, that retailers throughout the United States would have to get a corresponding advance."

High Lights in the Cotton Market

BY THEO. H. PRICE
Editor of Commerce and Finance

New York, January 2.—The "Sully year" provides almost the only precedent for it, but a secondary bull campaign begins to loom up as a possibility this season. If it comes, an under-estimate of the consumption will have made it possible.

Hester put the consumption for the season of 1927-28 at 17,428,000 bales, of which 1,653,000 bales were linters and 16,375,000 bales lint cotton. These figures were so surprisingly large that every one assumed they could not possibly be retained in 1927-28, and the result is that the trade has been working upon the theory that this season's consumption would show a substantial decrease.

The first indication that this theory might be wrong was furnished by the spinners' takings from week to week. Next came the monthly reports on the consumption in the United States, and finally the Garside statement published last week. This statement put the consumption of American lint cotton for the three months ending with last October at 4,221,000 bales, as against 3,529,000 bales in the same period last season. This is an increase of nearly 800,000 bales, and is at the rate of about 2,800,000 bales a year. The figures have been challenged and Garside himself is quoted as saying that a smaller consumption for November and December is indicated.

But there seems to be no reason to doubt that there was an important increase in the consumption early in the season, and it must be admitted that a very substantial decrease will be necessary to absorb the gain made up to the end of the year.

The first six months of the present season will end on January 31. If by that date the excess of consumption over last season's consumption is down to 250,000 bales and the decrease thereafter shall be as much as 10 per cent, the total reduction for the twelve months ending July 31, 1928, will be only 500,000 bales. On this basis the total consumption of lint cotton for the season of 1927-28 would be about 17,875,000 bales.

As this is fully 1,000,000 bales in excess of the estimates current earlier it ought to have a marked effect upon the attitude of both buyers and sellers. The recent recovery of about a cent a pound in the price of future, is largely due to a partial recognition of the facts above set forth, and if estimates of the consumption had finally or at the end of each month it might be possible to revive the averted speculation in the put contracts up to 25 cents in September. As it is there are but few who seem inclined to buy cotton for an advance, and the price level is chiefly dependent upon the attitude of holders and the buying of manufacturers. Thus far the former appear to be satisfied with 20 cents and as the latter are willing to do a little what they need on about that basis, no change of importance seems to be impending. Meantime a better feeling is reported in the domestic dry goods trade.

The Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York has published some figures which indicate that the sales of cotton fabrics in the United States for the 11 months ending November 30, 1927, were about 98-1/2 per cent of the production for the period, and even downward Lancashire is becoming more cheerful.

Then there is the next crop. As yet it is entirely in the realm of the conjectural, but in the cotton trade what is imagined is often more potent than what is known, and it is quite possible that the public may be persuaded that next season's requirements will exceed the probable yield. After this year's experience the boll weevil will again be a name to conjure with, and if the average should not show a substantial gain on the planting season should be unpropitious, a highly excited market might be seen.

In any event it would seem to be unlikely to be a surprise, no doubt, to be told that the last book in the Old Testament, written over 2,000 years ago, is as new and fresh, and applicable to the present times as though it left the press yesterday.

S. C. Dobbs, Jr., Opens Jackson, Boesel & Co. Branch Office in City

S. C. Dobbs, Jr., firm member of the Dobbs Mortgage & Investment Co., of Atlanta, and a member of the firm of Jackson, Boesel & Co., of

New York, has returned to this city after an absence of 14 years in order to open a branch of the Jackson, Boesel & Co. here.

The branch, which opened January 2, is located at 1607 Candler building with Mr. Dobbs as resident partner in charge. The company will engage in a general investment banking business, handling all listed securities.

The Jackson, Boesel company is a member of the New York stock exchange, the Chicago stock exchange, and the Chicago board of trade.

Mr. Dobbs returns to Atlanta from New York, where he has been engaged in the banking business with Jackson, Boesel & Co. as a partner, and with the Guaranty Trust company. He is a native of Atlanta, an alumnus of the Georgia Institute of Technology, and is widely and popularly known here.

Jack Delaney, it seems, could make it more interesting for Tunney than anyone else. The Bridgeport boxer, who deserted the light heavyweight division, is hardly big enough, or strong enough for Gene, but he can sling a great lot of fists in a very short time and a crap bet is a very aggravating habit of boxing boxers' hands into the folds of knapsacks. This fact would probably hamper Delaney a great deal.

Paulino and others of his ilk could even come under the head of possibilities. Paulino, last night, rang the bell on Pat Lester, a set-up from Arizona, and took seven rounds to do it in. That was the first of many bouts on a trip through the bushes. Paulino is probably counting on making as much money as he can before fading out of the picture entirely.

During a recent pool of boxing writers the country over, some hardy soul ranked George Godfrey, the "Black Panther of Leipsville," at the head of the heavies. Godfrey, a scrapper, he could probably beat most of the white contenders, but would hardly make any trouble for Tunney. That is, unless he had "Black Menace" that is, Delaney's steps.

So it appears that Gene can attend his dinner tomorrow night in peace, and probably many more of them. For the heavyweights—good ones, that is—are all too scarce.

Gene Tunney Farrell Leads Not Worried About Crown Tournament

Present Heavyweight Contenders Are Below Average; Jack Best.

BY BEN COTHRAIN.

The erudite Mr. Gene Tunney, present heavyweight boxing champion of the world, is on his way to New York to attend a dinner to be given by the Millionaire Club.

And it is no wild presumption to expect this very, but it is hardly likely that Dempsey can come through. In fact, it's almost a sure thing that another Tunney-Dempsey battle of the century will be announced shortly. There's no doubt but what it would draw a big crowd. Make it a 15-round affair and Tunney would probably have Dempsey lying on the floor, taking the count, before the thing was over. Dempsey, of course, still packs a fair punch, but he isn't another hour between the two and victory for Tunney would prove beyond a doubt that Tunney is the better man.

Rest No Good.

As for the rest, there isn't much to be expected this year. Jack Sharkey has an argument to settle with Tom Heeney, which Heeney will probably win. Both boys are fairly good heavyweights, but Sharkey was knocked off neatly by Dempsey, and it is hardly likely that he could make a very interesting fight with Tunney. Heeney, either, wouldn't go far with Tunney. His style is pie for a cool, skillful boxer like Gene, and the big fellow from "Down Under" wouldn't last very long.

There is some possibility of Knute Hansen, the "Mourful Dane," developing into a heavyweight contender. According to the reports from New York, where Mr. Hansen has been engaging in the many art of modified murder, he is getting to be a pretty fair boxer. But everyone seems to be of the opinion that he needs another eight or ten months of grooming.

Jack Delaney, it seems, could make it more interesting for Tunney than anyone else. The Bridgeport boxer, who deserted the light heavyweight division, is hardly big enough, or strong enough for Gene, but he can sling a great lot of fists in a very short time and a crap bet is a very aggravating habit of boxing boxers' hands into the folds of knapsacks. This fact would probably hamper Delaney a great deal.

Cardinals Nose Out Panthers in Rose Bowl Classic, 7 to 6

55,000 Fans See Stanford Defeat Pitt

Break in Third Period Gives Pitt 6-to-0 Lead Over Rivals.

First Victory For Cards in Three Attempts

Pasadena, Calif., January 2. (P)—Stanford's victory over Pittsburgh in the annual east-west game today was its first successive thrust out of three attempts in the Tournament of Roses tournament. Three years ago Stanford lost to Notre Dame 28 to 10, while last year the Cardinals were tied by Alabama 7 to 7, after outplaying the southerners for three periods.

BY RUSSELL J. NEWLAND.
Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., January 2.—(P)—In a glorious finale to an up-and-down season, Stanford's Cardinals trampled over the great Pittsburgh team to win the annual Tournament of Roses football game here today, 7 to 6.

A colorful throng of 55,000 spectators saw the Cards make a thrilling comeback in the third period after a heartrending "break" had set them on the short end of a 6-0 count. A fumble by Wilton, of Stanford, was picked up by Hagan and the stocky Panther halfback rushed 19 yards to plant his cleats in Stanford scoring turf.

Lashed into fighting fury by the sudden reversal, the Cards played their rivals for two periods, the Cards threw everything into one great offensive. A 31-yard pass by Hoffman, which fell into Warden's waiting arms, paved the way. On the 29-yard line, line play after line play, with Hoffman carrying the oval almost continuously, brought Stanford two yards from the goal.

Groans and Cheers.
A fumbled ball brought groans, then cheers from the Cardinal rooting section. Hoffman's short pass was caught by Sims, who fumbled when tackled after he had gone but a short distance by little Frank Wilton, whose bobble earlier in the period had resulted in the Pittsburgh touchdown, snatched up the ball and dashed three yards across the goal line. Hoffman's successful try for the extra point was the margin of the victory.

With the minutes slipping away, Pittsburgh made one smashing effort and the sky was filled with passes that either fell too far ahead of receivers, or were knocked down by Cardinal hands.

The central figure in today's gridiron drama was Coach "Pop" Hoffman, of Stanford. The strategy of the master was pitted against that of the former pupil. Eleven years ago Jack Switzerland, Panther captain, was a star player under "Pop" when the latter directed the destinies of the eastern university.

Big "Bill" Hoffman, Stanford fullback, was the outstanding player in the smashing windup that turned back an eleven that had been undefeated during the season until today. Pittsburgh shined with Yair, the mythical eastern champion.

Hoffman cracked the vaunted Panther line almost every time he carried the ball. And the big Card fullback was called on steady. Eighty-eight yards from scrimmage followed his efforts while nearly all passing and punting duties fell to him.

Gibby Welch, Pitt's all-American halfback, was a tower of strength for his alma mater, but Stanford had been coached to watch the stocky Card back who made eastern grid circles buzz this season.

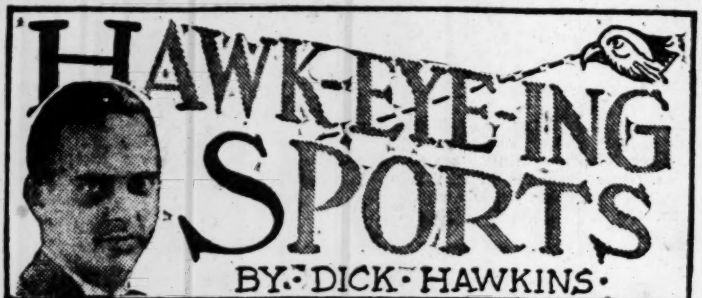

Welch broke away several times for runs that totaled 50 yards. But 18 yards was his best individual effort, while Booth, fullback, and another famed eastern warrior, was held to 39 yards total.

Stanford bested its rival in yards gained from scrimmage. The Cardinals reeled off a total of 154 yards against 139 yards for Pittsburgh. Stanford crashed through for 14 first downs. Pittsburgh turned in half that many. Warner's men also had an edge in passing honors, completing three out of ten for a total of 22 yards gain, while the Panthers tried the air 11 times, completing two for 22 yards total.

Punting honors went to Pittsburgh. Hagan booted the oval for an average of 51 yards, while Hoffman's average was 47 yards.

An Honor for Georgia.

The Empire State of Georgia has been accorded another honor with the coming of the new year.

As announced exclusively in The Constitution Sunday, the Associated Clubs of America are seeking to run their 1928 amateur field trial championships over the Georgia state courses at Waynesboro.

This organization is made up of clubs from every corner of the United States where field trials are run and if these trials are run in this state—which is entirely probable—Georgians will see the best field trial dogs of a nation handled by members.

The action of the national association in seeking the use of the Waynesboro grounds is significant of two things in particular. In the first place, they seek these grounds because the birds are more plentiful than on other trial grounds where they could run their events. Secondly they know that Sim Bell, Joe Reynolds, Charlie Skinner and the rest of the Waynesboro field trial gang can run off rational trials as they should be run.

That this confidence is not misplaced is entirely evident by the action already taken by President Sim Bell of the Georgia association. When he received the inquiry from President Phillips of the associated clubs regarding the use of the grounds he wired him that they would be available and immediately set out for Aiken to see that horses would be on hand for the use of the gallery when the trials are run.

After tending to this in his usual efficient manner he completes arrangements for the teams and men to handle the dog wagons and told the national outfit to "come on."

There is only one hitch in the arrangements at present. In answering the inquiry President Bell suggests to the associated clubs that it would be best to set their date back from February 6 to January 15 if such a thing were possible. He said at the same time, however, that they were at liberty to use the grounds in February if they elected to do so.

The field trial grounds proper are guarded day and night against fire but with surrounding country burned off in February it might be difficult to keep the dogs on the course. This condition should not be true this month and for that reason Mr. Bell has suggested that they set their date back. He is waiting now for the decision from the office of the clubs in Cincinnati.

One thing is certain. If the associated clubs choose to use the Waynesboro grounds they should find plenty of birds to work with and will most certainly find a brand of hospitality from the Waynesboro gang that is unbeatable anywhere.

Atlanta Quartet Seen As Ranking Net Stars

Bryan Grant, Winner of Southern Tournament, Expected To Be Ranked No. 1.—Mooney Next.

BY WHITNER CARY.

While the august powers that be in southern lawn tennis, who yearly burn the midnight oil in heroic endeavors to rank the Dixie net stars in order of ability have not yet sent out the magic message that will bring joy to some and heartache to others, it would be no great surprise to see a quartet of Atlanta players fill four of the first five positions in the singles, while another Gate City racket wielder along with his partner will undoubtedly get second place in the doubles.

The rankings as put out by the official ranking committee consisting of the president, two vice presidents, secretary and treasurer and national committeemen will appear shortly. Just to anticipate a trifle it would seem probable that the first five southern tennis players listed in singles would be Bryan Grant, Jack Mooney, "Hop" Owens, Ed Pfeiffer and Malon Courts. All of these save Pfeiffer are Atlantans. The latter hails from Louisville. The team of "Hop" Owens and Douglas Waters looks likely to get second place in the doubles ranking.

There is hardly any argument as to first place. For many years, in fact since the mind of the poorest dull runeth not to the contrary, the winner of the southern tournament has been ranked first. Bryan Grant, who only did this but added to this triumph by taking the Georgia state, one of the fastest state tournaments played in the south.

Neither is there much consideration when it comes to second place. Jack Mooney, in actual tournaments won, takes first rank in the south during the past season. This chop brook player brought the Carolinas, the South Carolina, North Carolina and Cotton States to his side of the net and went to the final in the southern state Georgia state. In both the latter events it was Bryan Grant who turned away his bid bid. This record speaks for itself and gives him the runnerup position by several lengths.

Owens Makes Good Showing.
After passing second place the ranking becomes more difficult. "Hop" Owens, while winning no singles tournament, made good showings in at least four. He was a semi-finalist in the Carolinas and Georgia state, finalist in the North Carolina and went to the round before the semi-final in the southern. In all these tournaments it was Mooney who best him. "Hop's" strongest rival for third place is Ed Pfeiffer, the Louisville flash. In cold dope "Hop's" record looks

Jones Wants To Challenge World Champ

Popular Young Grappler Will Challenge Winner of Stecher-Lewis Bout.

Paul Jones, who wrestles Jim Browning here at the city auditorium Thursday night, is proud that Joe Stecher and Ed Strangler Lewis are finally to settle the dispute as to which of the two is champion of the world.

Not that Paul is particularly interested in the welfare of either of those grapplers. Nothing like that at all. Paul in common with a lot of other wrestlers merely wants to see the championship scramble clarified, so that he will know just whom to challenge. As he explains it:

"Both Lewis and Stecher have been claiming the title and it has had the rest of the boys puzzled as to whom to challenge. If you were to beat Lewis you couldn't set yourself up as champion, because Stecher is running around the country claiming the title. If you beat Stecher then there'd be Ed Lewis setting up his usual howl."

Going After Winner.
"After Stecher and Lewis have wrestled in St. Louis next month and cleared up the situation I am going after the winner and once I get hold of him—dash!" Jones paused, presumably through modesty and then continued, "well I'll do my best. That's all anyone can do."

There is no doubt about Jones being one of the outstanding wrestlers in the game today. Young, strong and skilled, he has all of the qualifications that it requires to rise in the field of competitive and professional athletics and to top it off he has ambition and imagination. Jones can sit back and picture himself as champion of the world at some future date and that mental picture is by no means displeasing to the young grappler.

In addition to the Jones-Browning bout of Thursday night, Matchmaker Conter will match the fans with a fracas, between Scotty McDougal and Ivan Mickaloff. They are known as two of the roughest grapplers in the game and the boys in the city for that reason have decided to postpone the show, said Mayson.

McDougal is making his first appearance here in 30 days—the boxing commission having requested him to absent himself from the city for that period, because of the near riot attendant to his last appearance here early in December.

McDougal became so rough on that occasion that it became necessary for him to spend a few hours in jail. However, McDougal has been in trouble before.

Mickaloff is not one who takes kindly to the tactics of such rough athletes as McDougal. That was demonstrated at Nashville a few months ago, when Ivan assaulted Jack Wasa-burn in vigorous fashion. On that occasion the boys in the city for that reason have decided to postpone the show, said Mayson.

John Paxos, well-known Chicago grappler and favorite with Atlanta fans, will appear on the Thursday night card. His opponent will be announced later. Paxos was here last season and proved to be very popular with the fans.

Tickets for the Thursday night show are available at Chess' Place, The Piedmont Hatters and at the Piedmont hotel cigar stand.

1928 GEORGIA TECHSCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED

A clash between Tech and Notre Dame on Grant field this fall was assured Monday with the announcement of the 1928 grid schedule for 1928. The card shows Notre Dame on the list to play Tech here Saturday, October 20. The Georgia game will be played December 8, and will be the last game of the year.

Alabama, usually coming as the third or fourth game of the season, has been shifted back and comes the week after Thanksgiving, giving Tech three of its hardest games—Alabama, Auburn and Georgia—in a row.

Due to conflicting dates there had been some doubt as to the possibility of a Tech-Notre Dame game. The Southern Tennis association is opposed to ranking a player on more than one doubles team, and as it was the team of Owens and Waters which went to the final in the south, it is this pair that will probably get second place. This selection will, most likely, leave Robertson, who only played in one tournament out of the picture. This is a great hardship on the Salisbury player as he is one of the greatest doubles players in the south. He and Owens make an ideal combination and certainly one that could cause much trouble to any southern outfit.

Vidabeck Loses on K. O.
Dayton, Ohio, January 2.—(P)—Joe Seykora, Dayton heavyweight contender, knocked out Billy Vidabeck, champion, N. J., in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout here today. Seykora weighed 177 pounds and Vidabeck 175.

Kelly Gets Verdict.
Scranton, Pa., January 2.—(P)—Billy Kelly, of this city, was awarded the judges' decision over Blas Rodriguez, Mexican flyweight and bantamweight champion, this afternoon in a fast ten-round battle. Kelly weighed 113, and Rodriguez 112 1/4.

In the semi-final of six rounds, Tommy Gerrity, also of this city, defeated Teddy Seidman, of California.

Bobby Jones Quits Law School And Will Enter Business Here Following Trip To New York

'Big Bill' Edwards, Grid Star, Weds

New York, January 2.—(P)—William H. "Big Bill" Edwards, former Princeton university football star, and Norma Jones, Steelsmith, of Marengo, Iowa, were married today at the Hotel Commodore.

A reception followed the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Edwards left tonight for Miami and Sarasota, Fla., where they will be guests of John Ringling. They will reside in New York.

Ringside Card Is Postponed Until Friday

Freezing Weather Causes Mayson To Call Off Tonight's Show.

Due to the cold wave now gripping Atlanta, the Tuesday night show at the Ringside club will be postponed until Friday night. Matchmaker Jimmie Mayson announced late Monday night. All fighters are on hand and will remain here until the fight, working out each day.

"Although the club is steam-heated, fans will not come out for a fight, and for that reason we have decided to postpone the show," said Mayson.

Larry Aver, the pugilist whose rapier-like left jab is as rapid as an automatic hammer, will try and punch a decision off the resisting form of Jack Shepherd, who once was something of a favorite in Atlanta and who since that time has become quite a figure in the middle west and east.

Avera claims the southern junior welterweight championship. Shepherd lays claims to no title, but it is a matter of record that both Avera and Shepherd are adept at giving the fans plenty of action and, according to all dope, the ten-round main event should be the best yet offered on the weekly cards at the Ringside club.

The first bout will go on at 8:30 o'clock and from that point until the finish there will be as much action as can be crowded into four matches and a total of 30 rounds.

Battling Budd will officiate in the principal bouts on the card.

Shepherd Out to Win.
Shepherd comes here from Cincinnati, Ohio, where he has been making his headquarters for these many years and he comes with the single and laudable ambition of showing Avera more glove leather than he knows how to dodge.

Avera is one of the best known and most skilled fighters in the south, but due to a scarcity of boxing promoters Avera has had only one fight here in over a year.

But the fans need not look to the main event alone for their thrills. Far from it. Matchmaker Mayson believes that he has arranged a line set of preliminaries, one of the best collections of opening bouts yet offered at his popular club.

Jones in Wind-Up.
In the eight-round semi-windup Casey Jones will be pitted against Battling Stein. It is the second meeting between the two and promises to be bitter, as Stein entertains the idea that he can wreak vengeance for the first defeat suffered in combat with his opponent of tonight.

Departing from his usual custom of relying on small boys for the preliminary action Matchmaker Mayson has booked a couple of heavies for one of the two six rounds that will serve to get things started. In that feature Wood Pace tackles Young Fisher. In the other one it will be Add Tuxton against Jerry Sands.

Women Swimmers Fail in Straits

Gibraltar, January 2.—(United News).—Attempts of Misses Mercedes Gleitz and Millie Hudson, of London, to swim the Straits of Gibraltar failed today.

Miss Gleitz, the London typist who said she swam the English channel after seven unsuccessful attempts, entered the water at 3 a. m. and gave up more than 10 hours later.

Miss Hudson, who has no great swimming faith to her credit, started at 10:45 a. m. and was forced to abandon the swim at 9 p. m. according to fishermen.

Golfing Ace To Attend Big Dinner For Champions.

Emory university has lost its most famous student.

Bob Jones, British open, national amateur and southern open golf champion, announced Monday night that he had informed the president of Emory that he would no longer be a student at Emory. Bob, only last week, passed his bar examination and has now become a full-fledged lawyer.

The famous Atlanta golfer will enter the law business with his father's firm, Jones, Evans, Moore and Powers.

To Attend Dinner.
Bob made the announcement of his leaving school on the eve of his departure for New York where, Wednesday night, Tex Rickard's "Six Hundred Millionaires" club is feasting the world champions in every sport, at a dinner. Bob will be there representing golf: Gene Tunney, for the boxing game; Babe Ruth, for baseball, and on down through every branch of sport. Jones will leave this morning for New York.

Bob also said Monday that his leaving school changed in no manner his decision not to defend his title in the British open this summer. He stated that pressing business affairs will keep him from making the trip across the water to defend the title that he won in such spectacular fashion last year.

It was about this time last winter that Bob said he would not enter the British open this summer. In 1927, then, at the last moment, he decided to go. But this time Bob makes the statement with an air of finality and it is almost a certainty that his golfing at Chicago.
